As South's tower, the symbol of our alma mater, rises into the afternoon sky, the deep shadows of the pines create a striking contrast with the sunbathed fields.

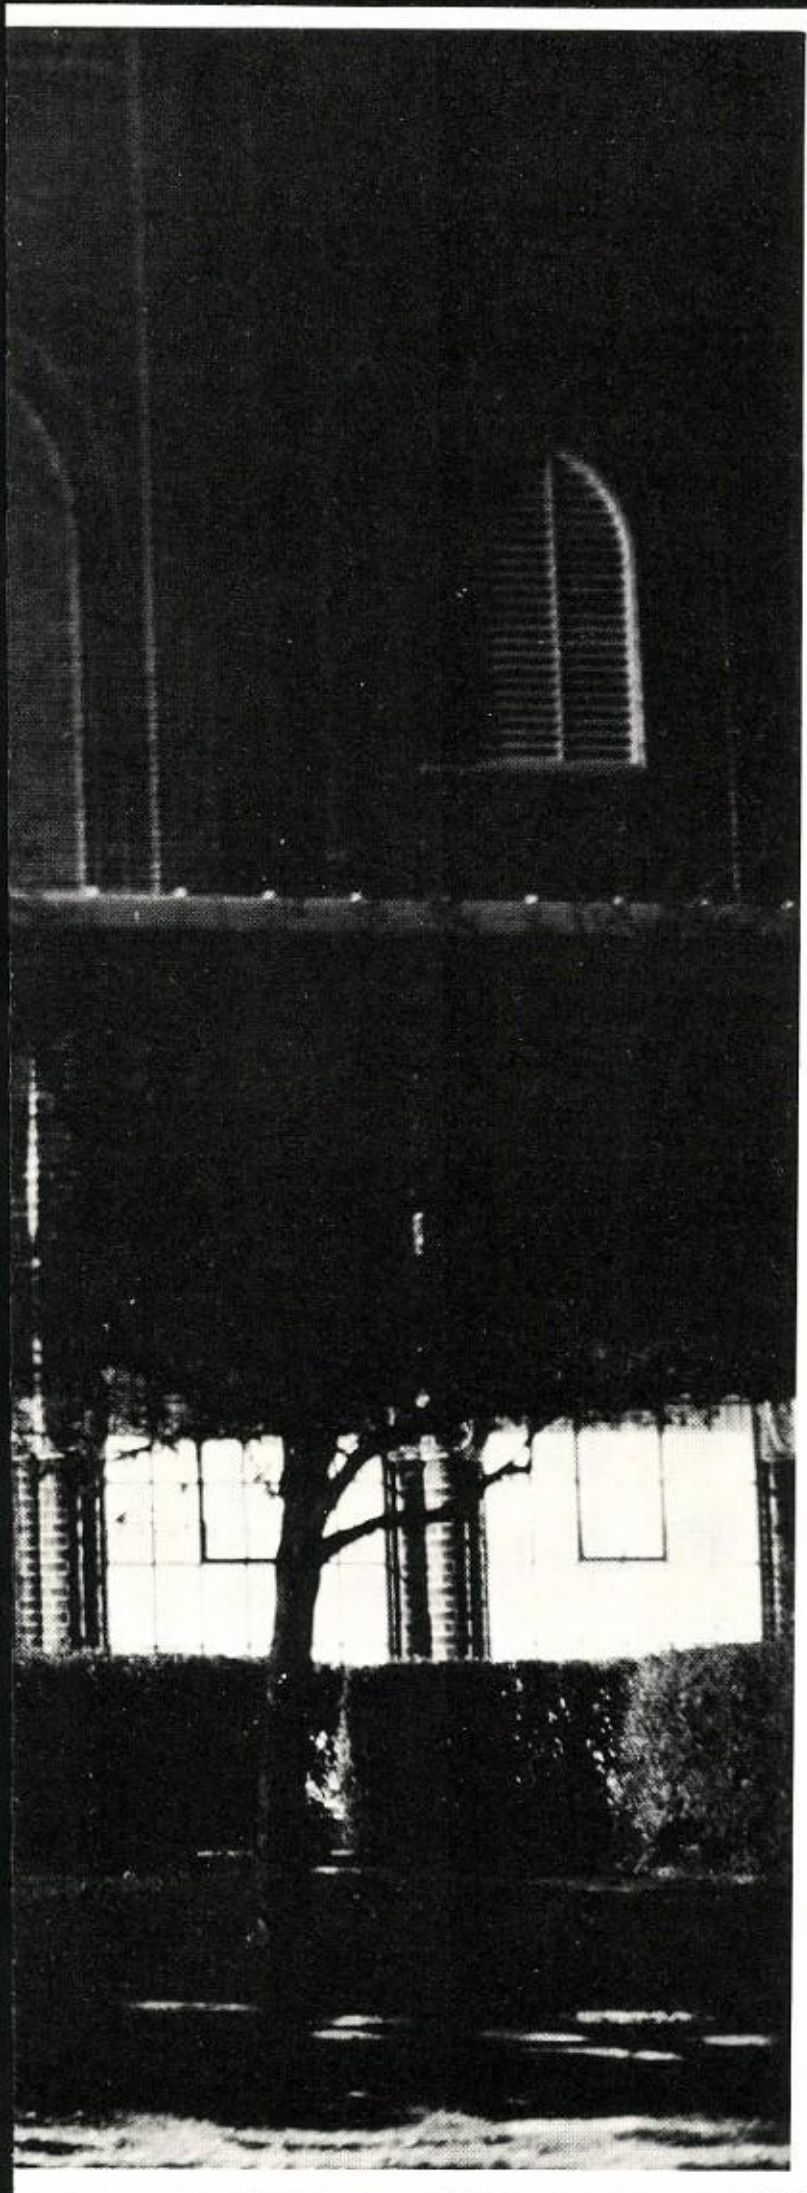

Southern Sunlight and Shadows

Jean
Sally

As students pause in South Court to enjoy the warm sun of Indian Summer, blue shadows of the autumn trees linger amidst the fallen leaves on the still-green lawn.

Light and Shadow

Students visiting South for plays, dances, or other night activities find a wondrous world in South Court where the lights of Senior Hall radiate a soft glow. As people cross the court, the swish of fallen leaves, the splash of rain droplets, or the crunch of snow, packed hard, breaks the stillness of the magic scene. Deep shadows play their nightly game, creating strange patterns on the lawn and flagstones, while a silver crescent or a harvest moon beams from the heavens.

In the morning the magic of the evening scene will be supplanted by the warmth of human voices and laughter in the corridors. Senior Hall, bathed in the morning sun, will be alive with students gossiping excitedly or hurrying to finish a homework assignment. The first bell, ringing loudly, will announce the start of classes for another day. These students making the rounds from room to room, hall to hall, and rendezvous to rendezvous, compose the living lights and shadows of South High School.

Dedication

Madame Combs

One of the most unusual, interesting and dedicated personalities of our faculty is Madame Combs, who has been teaching at South for thirty years. Born and educated in Bordeaux, France, Madame Combs taught in a junior college in France before coming to Colorado as a French war bride in 1919. After teaching at Manual for four and one-half years, she moved to East in 1924 and then to South in 1930. To her many students at our school she brought a rich and authentic background and a thorough knowledge of French customs and culture.

In 1935 Madame Combs instituted a series of biannual trips which enables chosen students to tour France and see the life of the French people. Through these tours the students have the opportunity to visit France more completely than the average tourist, and the French become acquainted with the representative American Teenager. For her work in bringing a closer understanding between France and the United States, Madame Combs was decorated by the French Consul in 1938 with the Purple and Silver Award of the Order of the Academic Palms.

Madame Combs, with a twinkle in her eye, is able to draw the best from a student. She teaches him how to study effectively and then enriches each night's lesson through her personal knowledge of the French mind and culture. With her many stories of the French and their way of life, the study of this people's language takes on a vivid color.

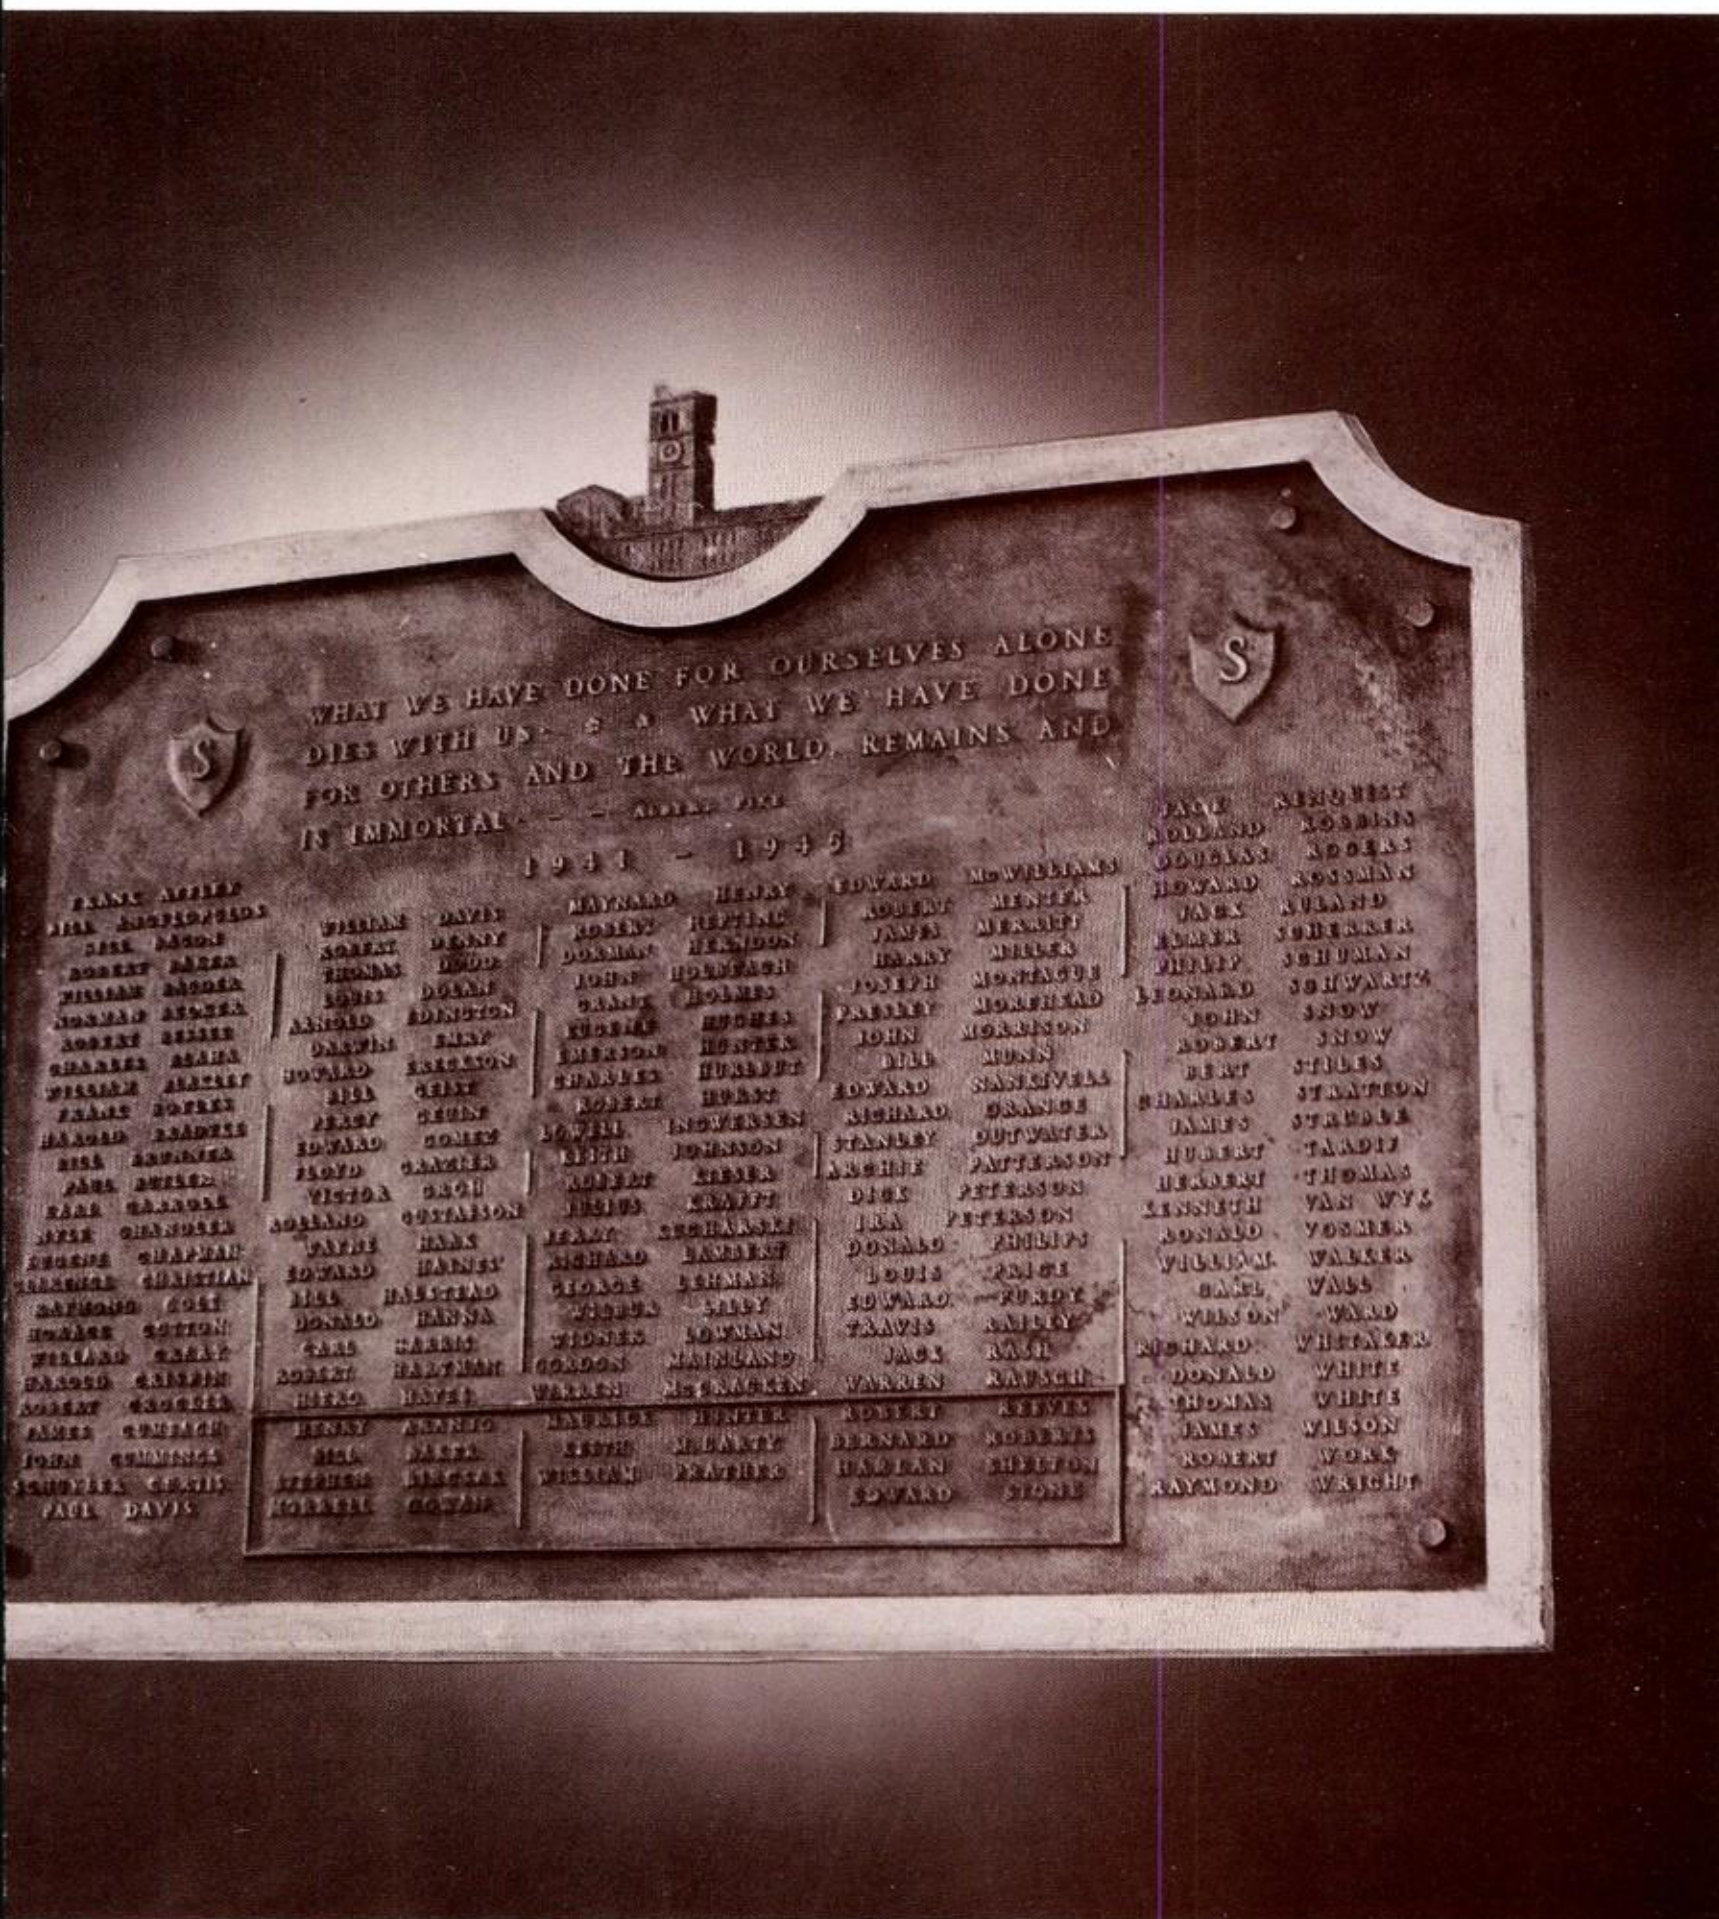

For the service you are rendering both to your native and your adopted lands and for the guidance, discipline and stimulus you give to our young minds, we dedicate to you, Madame Combs, the 1961 JOHNNY REB.

The shadow of death which passed over these Rebels had made them an immortal example and a guiding light for future generations of Americans. Students who read these names, a few of the thousands on the roll call of the mighty, can feel a sense of awe in the great sacrifice that they made. From their hands we have received the torch of freedom that we may light new paths of human experience.

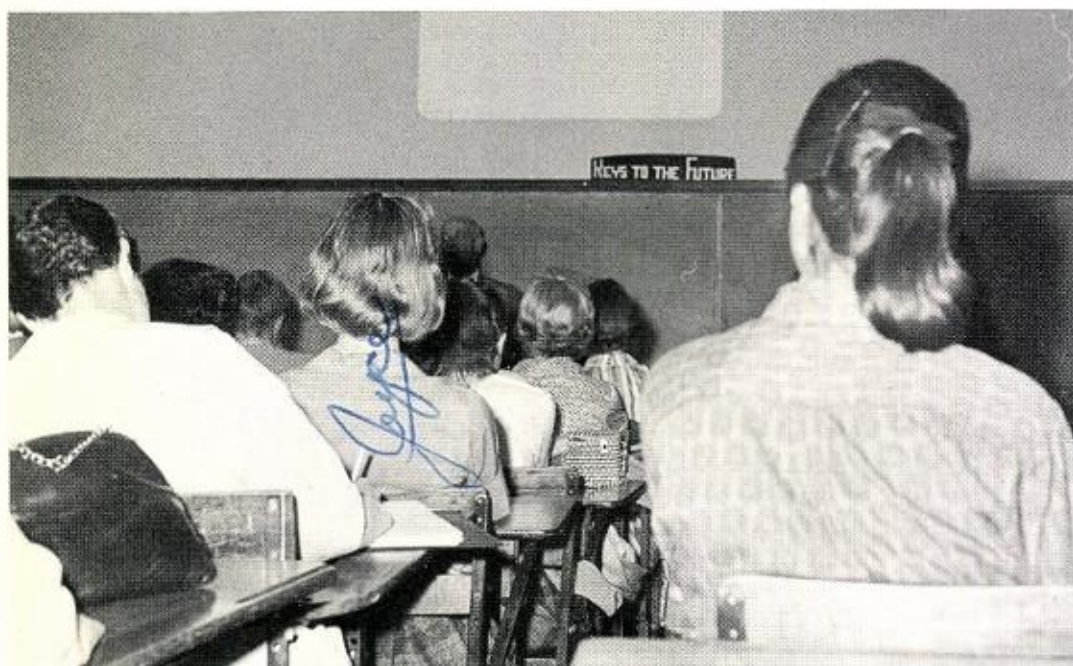

Dawn to Dusk

Day to Day

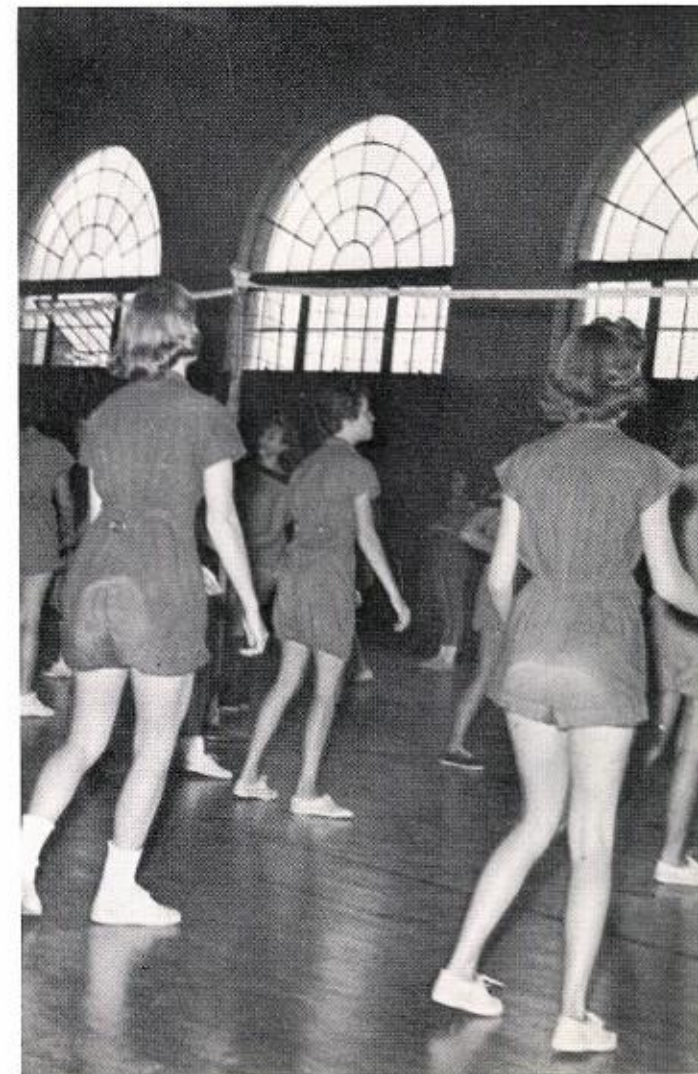

At South High School

The school looms waiting at 8:40 A.M. . . .

Brisk physical activities add to busy schedules . . .

. . . although thoughts may be interrupted by dreams of Saturday night.

The popcorn wagon offers a refreshing pause after a full day.

When our consciousness becomes somewhat blurred during the second floor early evening practice sessions

Activities

As the house lights dim and the shadows deepen in the auditorium, a hush falls on the expectant audience. With the rise of the curtain, the speaker for an assembly steps forward, a choir begins to sing or actors unfold a play. The spotlight dances across the stage following the gyrations of an animated performer. Blazing on this magic world, the footlights create kaleidoscopic patterns on the shadow people acting out their make believe lives, which are a mirror of our own existence.

Tomorrow when the performers have assumed their real positions in the world, rehearsing and planning will begin anew for the next program. Students will confer with guest-speakers who offer interesting and challenging ideas. Through careful programming, student leaders will present assemblies which will provide entertainment or enlightenment. This is the backstage activity with its satisfactions and problems, its lights and shadows, which makes it possible momentarily to exchange reality for an imaginary world or to enrich our lives by sudden inspiration.

Excited Rebels march in rows of three around the school toward the stadium for their homecoming game with T.J.

Cars began to converge upon the student parking lot as early as 8:00 A.M. on the Saturday of Rebel Roundup and our game with Thomas Jefferson. Senior Hall soon buzzed with activity as cokes and doughnuts rapidly disappeared. Crowds lined up outside for the parade into the stadium as the game time neared. "Come on, you Rebels, yell!" screamed our bouncy cheerleaders as the procession started toward the stands. Confederate flags and shakers waved high over the heads of the student throng, and a thrill of excitement passed through the stadium like an electric shock as the spirited partisans arrived. A big question mark hung over both teams, but Southerners' confidence ran high.

Rebel Roundup

"Quick, pass it here!" shouts Julie Lundstrom as the group of girls depicts Washington's team fumbling through football practice before their game with South. Rallies such as this one, held before football and basketball games, arouse Rebel spirit.

Sophomore Tea

Everything from trick riding on a unicycle to an all-girl sailor dance line provided a welcome to the sophomore girls at their tea, "Autumn Rainbows," on September 29. Dr. Anderson and Pep Club president Carol Barnes greeted the newcomers. Following the program in the auditorium, junior and senior pepsters served punch and tea sandwiches in the gym to extend a hand of friendship and hospitality typical of South.

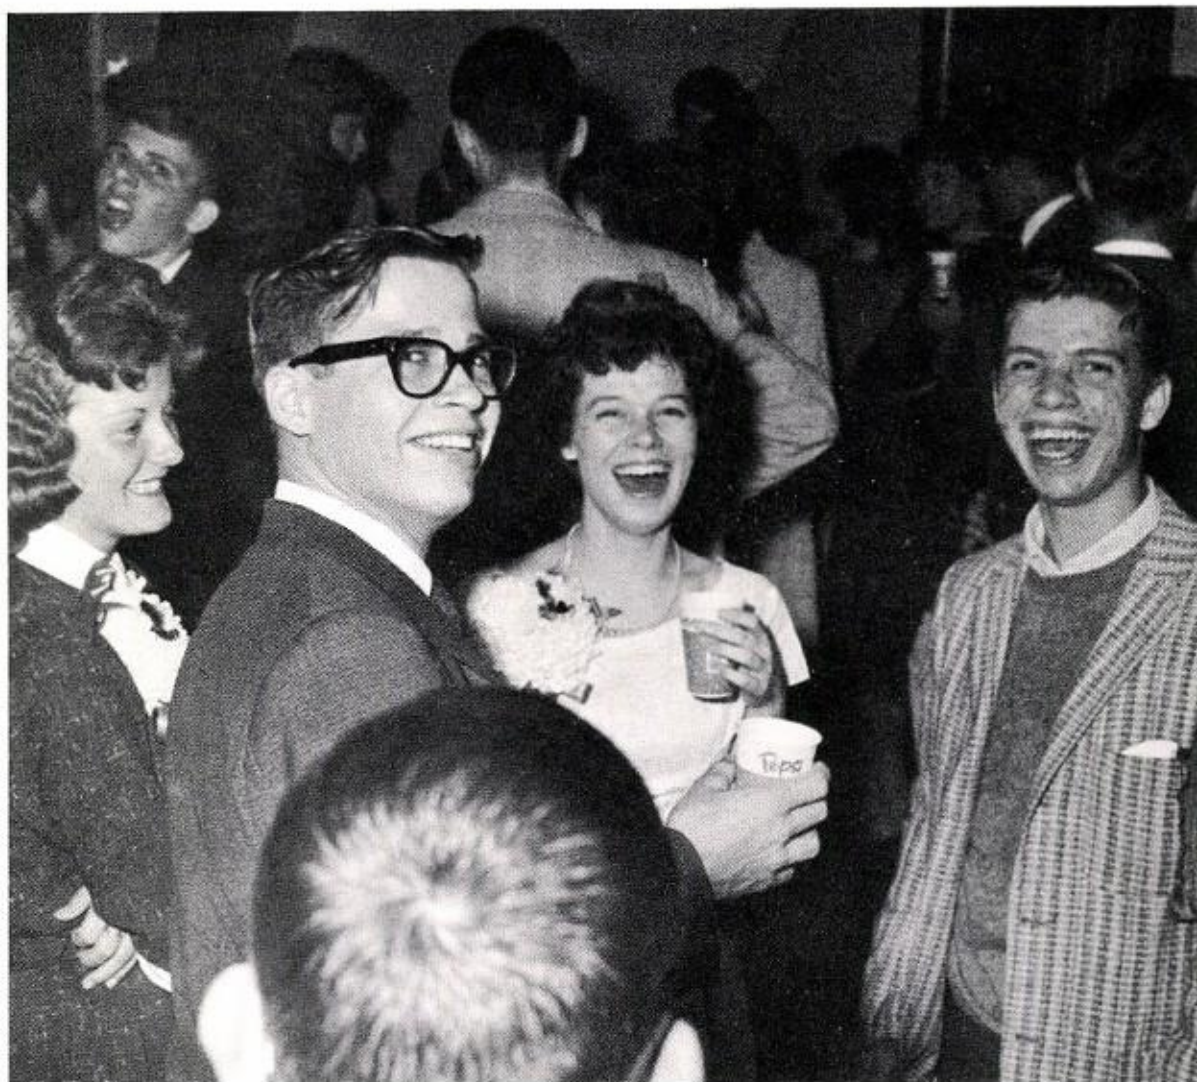

Sophomore Party

The class of '63 held their Sophomore Party, "Magic Moods," on October 14. Blue and white streamers and gay balloons added a mystic atmosphere to the dance music of Bill Nikkel's Skyliners. The lively entertainment of talented "sophs," including Mary Christiansen, Elmer Canady and Penny Field pantomining "Honeybun" from South Pacific, and a piano guitar duet by Terry Meiger and Bob Olson, received hearty approval during the evening. Miss Donaldson and Mr. Brower, sophomore class sponsors, were guests of honor at the first social gathering of our newest Southern class.

A gilt star and brightly colored spheres suspended high over the heads of dancing couples add to the magic of the Sophomore Party.

Homecoming Dance

Dim lights, gay back-drops, and twinkling stars transformed both gyms into a "Half-Time Heaven" at our Homecoming Dance on October 29. After a rousing game with Jefferson, won 20-0, couples were enchanted by the magic band music of Bill Nikkel and Dennis Reitz. Many students expressed appreciation for the hard work of the Pep Club which made South's first big dance of the year a heavenly success.

Laughter and gaiety, caught by the camera's lightning flash, depict the "spirit" of the Homecoming Dance.

Drama Club Play

"The Man Who Came to Dinner," starring Harry Kisker in the role of Sheridan Whiteside, was presented on November 4 by the Drama Club. The play, a rollicking satire of Alexander Wolcott, famous lecturer, critic, and temperamental genius, had members of the audience literally holding their sides. Long hours and many rehearsals went into the play, which was given in a special program for drama teachers and their guests, and again in a well-attended presentation for students and parents. The long and thunderous applause attested to the dramatic ability and fine preparation of the cast, the excellent leadership of Mrs. Nordstrom, and the enjoyment of the audience.

"You have the touch of a slimy cobra!" exclaims Harry Kisker to a shocked Linda Richardson.

Eddie Ochs, as Banjo, has a scheming look as he prepares to close Barbara Lofgren in the mummy case.

Assemblies

Assemblies at South are presented to interest and instruct the students. During the year the hushed auditorium enjoys a great variety of programs, ranging from the first Student Council assembly to the class meetings on Color Day.

South's International Relations Club had charge of an assembly on October 28 honoring the United Nations. Mr. Wilmer Grimes, past United States' representative to the Olympic Games, was guest speaker. On November 22 the first Letter Awards Assembly was held to praise our many fine athletes. A fund-raising assembly for the "Zoo of Tomorrow" Society was sponsored early in December by Student Council.

"They have some sense of humor, giving me away for a Christmas dinner!" gobbles the turkey presented to Marsh Messick, winner of a Confederate contest, at the Zoo of Tomorrow Assembly.

Kyung Sook Lee, new to America this year, played a Chopin ballad and a Korean folk song, Toraji, in the assembly recognizing the United Nations.

Thanksgiving Assembly

Our first religious assembly, given the day of the Thanksgiving recess, was organized by South's Hi-Y Club. An invocation by club chaplain Terry Boblit created a reverent mood for the inspirational songs of Concert Choir. Following the musical selections, guest speaker Dr. Edward Lindell, a coach from North High, talked about the meaning of Thanksgiving.

The excellent vocal music department of our school presented its Christmas concert in two assemblies and an evening performance on December 21. Each choir, from Sophomore Mixed Chorus to Concert Choir, sang several selections. At the end of the performance the entire group joined together in a swelling finale of combined voices. During the singing of the last song, "Silent Night," a powdering of snow drifted down onto the manger, and outside, white flakes began to fall on the darkened, quiet city.

The Concert Choir sings "Praise Ye to the Lord," a Bach motet, in the second Christmas assembly.

Cupid's Beau

Valentine's Day each year brings the one chance that long-pursuing gals have to snag the "boy of their dreams," for the Junior Red Cross presents Cupid's Beau. The guys have to put up with wearing vegetable corsages, which are known to bring on tears when made of onions. Yet there are also certain rewards, for the males are generally treated to eats afterwards, an expensive undertaking if they are as hungry as usual. Many girls found the cost well invested this year when Cupid's shining arrows struck down Southern and Spartan men on the night of February 11 in the Thomas Jefferson gym.

"The arrow won't hit me," said Ray Carey, but that was before he danced with his escort Marva Mustain at Cupid's Beau.

Key Klub Klomp

This year's "Key Klub Klomp" was held jointly with our new neighbor, Thomas Jefferson High, in their gym. On November 5 couples poured through the doors of the building onto the lovely, expansive dance floor. The excitement of unfamiliar surroundings added flavor to the joy of greeting last year's comrades as lightly whirling couples swayed to the mellow music of the Wayne Case band. Under the traditional Key Club colors of gold and blue, the groups from both schools joined to make their dance a double success.

Enthusiastic dates and lone wolf Bob Ruble enter the doors at Thomas Jefferson prior to the Key Klub Klomp on November 5.

'S' Club Dance

The feet of many athletes and their dates tripped gaily around the floor to the music of Bill Nikkel's band at the traditional 'S' Club Dance, "Athlete's Feat," held on March 11. Sports have played an important part at South, and in gratitude for Rebels' support, the athletes who have lettered, led by 'S' Club president Bill Finlay and his various committees, held this dance.

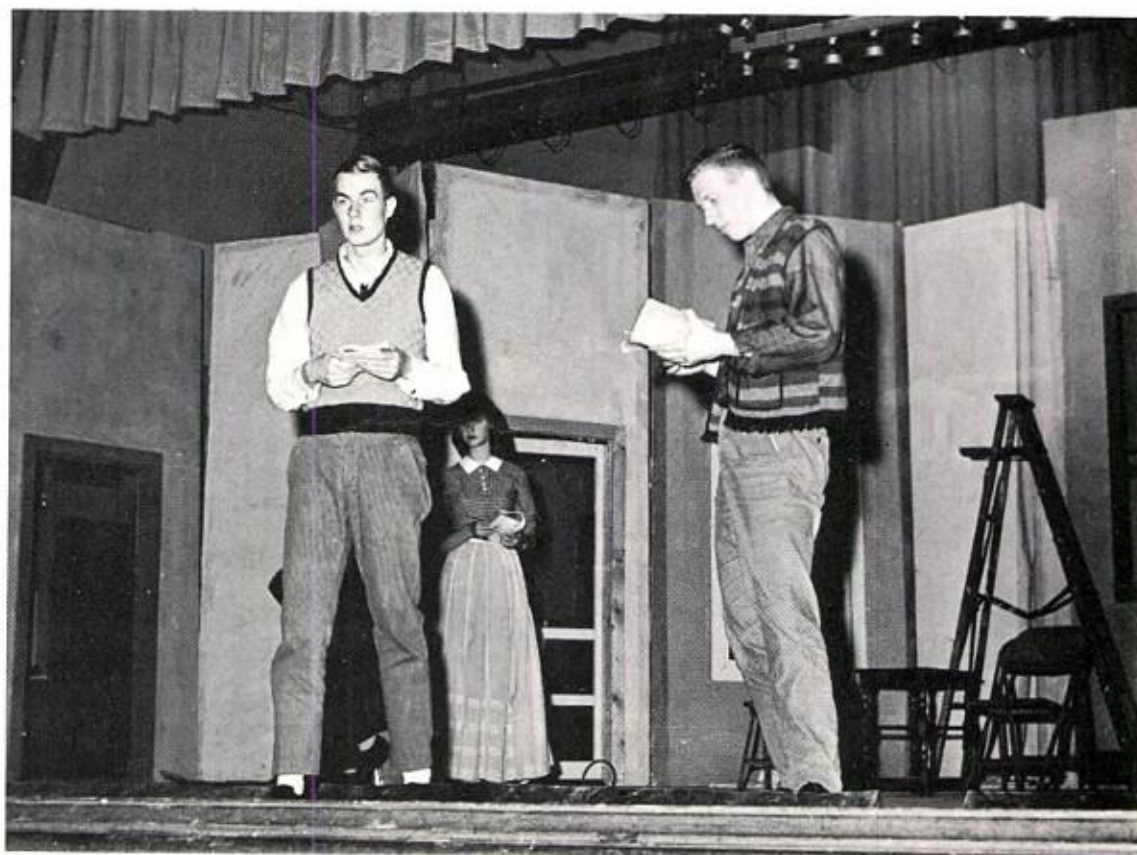

Gaily swinging couples "had a ball" at 'S' Club Dance.

"You're beautiful! You're-Melisandel!" exclaims Dave Meyer, as Starbuck, to Lizzie, played by Gay Johnson, in Senior Drama's production of "Rainmaker" on March 15.

Rainmaker

At a gala program on the evening of March 15, seven members chosen from Senior Drama enacted the play "Rainmaker." Long hours of cast rehearsal and behind-the-scenes work by the whole class went into this romantic 3-act presentation, directed by Mrs. Nordstrom and starring Gay Johnson as Lizzie and Dave Meyer as Starbuck, the "rainmaker." An unusual lighting effect was tried for the first time in this play, as scenes were changed by switching the lights from one set to another rather than by using the curtains.

In this rehearsal scene, Harry Kisker as Lizzie's brother Noah Curry discusses rain-making with Starbuck.

Mother-Daughter Tea

Fashion Show committee members Joanne Ronnfeldt, Carol Erickson, and Carol Barnes meet at a downtown department store to discuss spring styles.

The yearly fashion show and tea, presented by Pep Club for Rebel daughters and their mothers, was held on April 6. Twelve members modeled the newest spring fashions from a local department store to compliment the theme "Les Créations de Desirée." The showing was followed by refreshments served to the enthusiastic guests in the South Court. Because of the efforts of Joanne Ronnfeldt, chairman of the tea, Pep Club president Carol Barnes and all the club members, this show was a very enjoyable one for all who attended.

Career Day

A Career Day for sophomores as well as juniors and seniors was held for the first time on March 16. On this day regular second and third hour classes were postponed so that Southerners could listen to discussions of skills or professions by members of many widely varying fields. Representatives were furnished by nine business organizations of Denver through arrangements made by Mr. Bonger. Duties of Pep Club girls for Career Day included directing speakers to and from their classes and making them feel at home at a tea following the program.

Mr. Trimmer, from the Ringsby Truck Lines, stands before the 65-foot long semi-truck which was parked before the school on Career Day in connection with the class held for those interested in truck driving.

Music Week

During spring Music Week, May 15-19, both instrumental and vocal music departments presented programs which were the result of long hours of rehearsal and practice. Concert Band and Concert Orchestra, under Mr. Forest Goff's direction, performed May 16 in both a morning assembly and an evening program for interested parents and friends. The next day, as the finale of a musical year, Mr. Wells and Mrs. Williams led South's vocal groups in song before their classmates and relatives. Both programs creditably demonstrated the excellent quality of our music departments and the talent and training of the performers.

Craig Johnson, playing his French horn, is one of many in Concert Band who work and practice hard to make their group "tops."

Mr. Forest Goff directs the band in preparation for the last music concert of the year during Spring Music Week.

Speech Meet

This year's Shafroth Extemporaneous Speaking Contest, one of the many speech events available for Denver students, was held at South on January 13. One girl and one boy representative, chosen by each school in a preliminary contest, drew six topics an hour before contest time. The student then used his own research materials in preparing a three to five minute speech. Judging the contest were speech instructors from outside schools, who rated participants against members of their own sex in two separate contests. This year's winner in the boys' division was our own Doug Anderson, who spoke on "The World's Greatest Problem."

Jo Heller, girls' representative from South to the Shafroth contest, congratulates boys' winner Doug Anderson on his speech and the trophy he received.

All-School Show

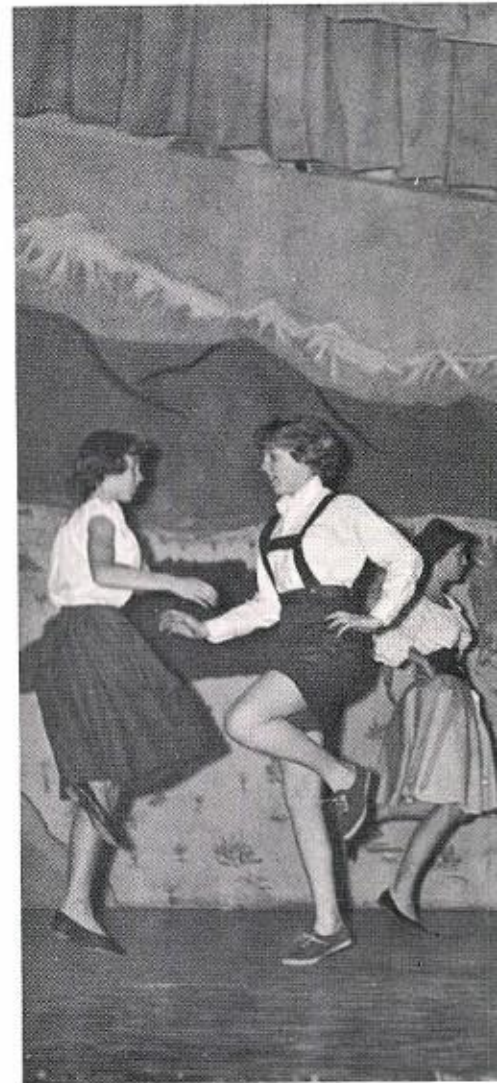

The band struck up "Grant Avenue" and the high-kicking legs of the Senior dance line set the mood as the curtain lifted on February 23 and 24 for "An Enchanted Evening with Oscar Hammerstein." Swiftly the audience was carried through the Orient to the South Pacific, and people from the Far East came alive before their eyes. Then the scene moved to the mountains and the "Sound of Music." Effective narration, prepared by a Folio Leaves committee, helped make smooth transitions from act to act. In the closing scenes, people of America were characterized through the vivid pictures and sounds of "Carousel" and "Oklahoma." Hard work on the part of all involved and a wide array of Southern talent helped to make this presentation a small offering to the man who taught us to understand others by "Getting to Know You."

The Show Choir sings "Bali Hai" from "South Pacific," as the curtains close on the first act of "An Enchanted Evening with Oscar Hammerstein."

The expressive voices of narrators Gay Johnson and Doug Anderson added life to various scenes. Here Gay, dressed in Swiss alpine costume, helps move the setting to Switzerland and the "Sound of Music."

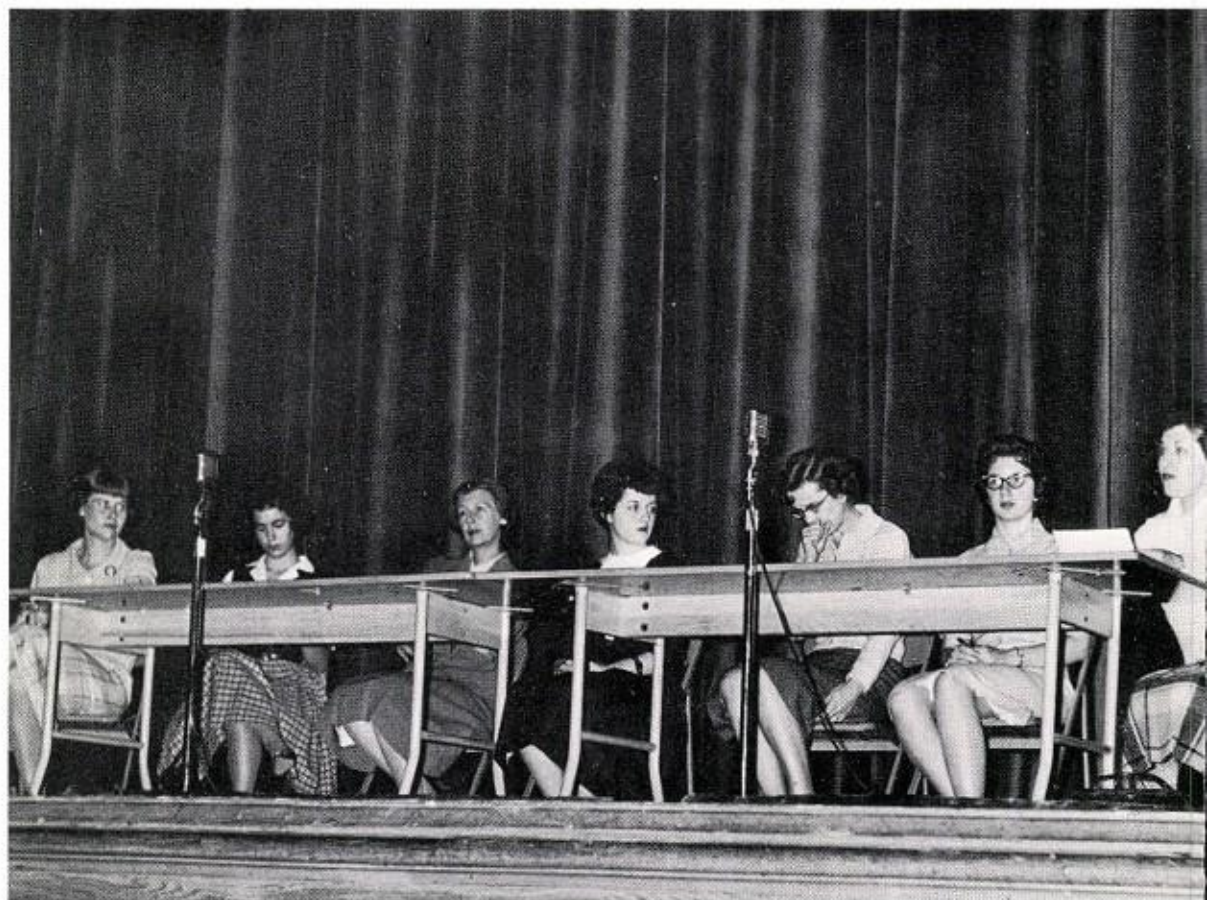

The "Alpine Folk Dance" from the "Sound of Music" is performed by girls from a modern dance class. Adding a touch of realism, the snow that drifted down gently on Thursday evening fell in clumps on Friday night!

A farce called "Fun in the Desert" interrupted the second act. Doug Anderson and Cort Bender portrayed Arabian sheiks. Jim Roorda played a camel, and Linda Richardson was the camel's leader.

Panhellenic Conference

Senior girls interested in college attended a meeting following the presentation of Senior Prom candidates on March 3. Four women from the Panhellenic League of Denver, together with three girls from South who attended Girls' State, presented a panel discussion of Greek life at colleges. The senior girls were enthralled by insights into the life they themselves would soon be leading, as they listened attentively to the talk about clothes, roommates, budgeting time, and social activities at college.

A panel on social life in college sororities answered many of the questions of senior girls at the Panhellenic Conference.

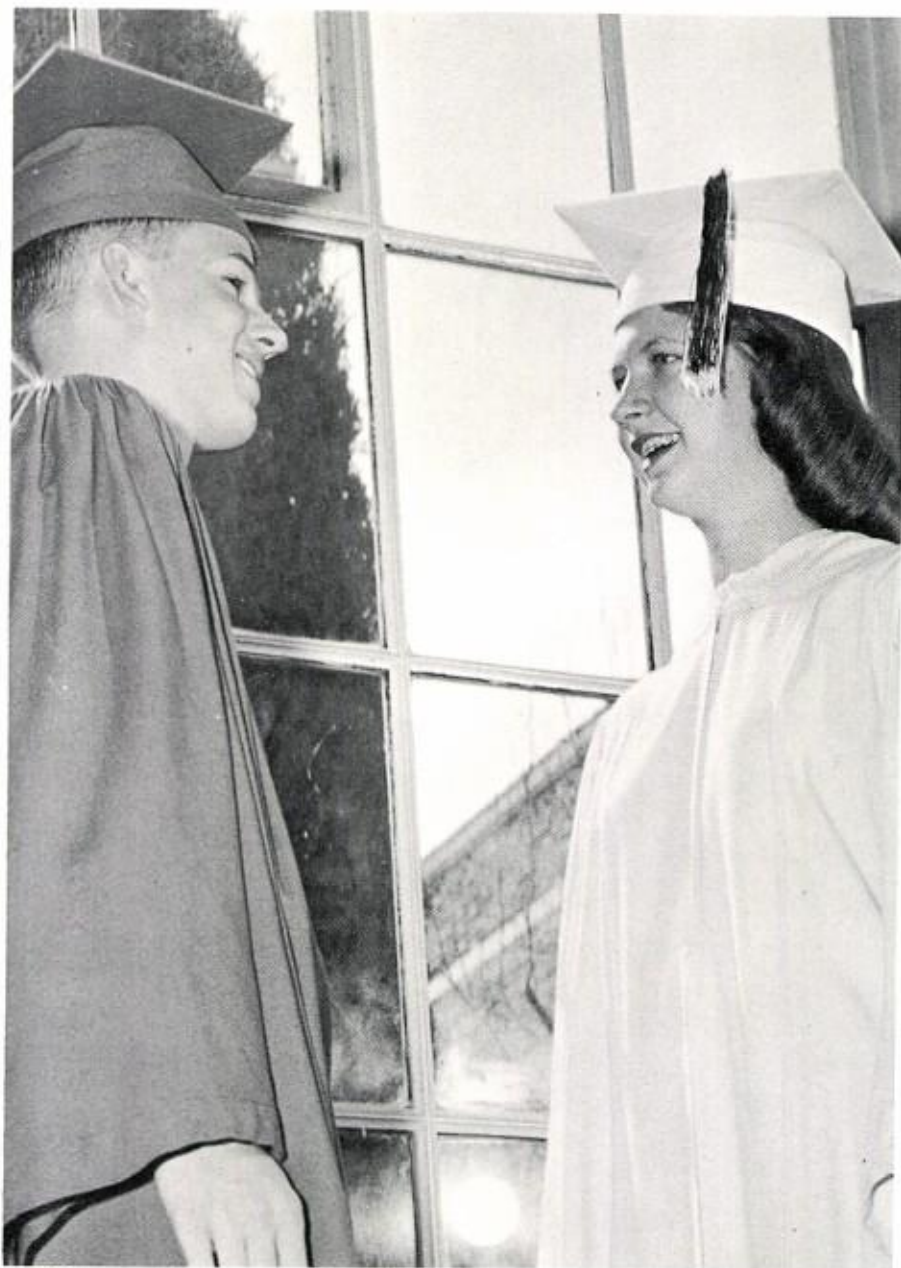

Science Fair

South's science department has been known for the outstanding achievements of its students in a number of years past. This year's entries in the Metropolitan Area Science Fair, held at Denver University on March 24 and 25, displayed a great range of abilities in the fields of biology, electronics, chemistry, physics, and radio. Available awards were many: trips to the state and national science fairs, books, slide rules, and a full tuition scholarship offered by D.U. Those visitors attending the exhibition were impressed by the accomplishments of South's scientists of tomorrow.

Two projects of the physics department that went to this year's Science Fair are the 10,000 megacycle microwave transmitter, demonstrated by Ken Ault, and an apparatus for the evaporation of thin films, shown here by Gerry Gallagher and Dave Morris.

Graduation

Gay Johnson and Jack Hart, two high-ranking members of the senior class, try on the robes they will wear on graduation night, as the time nears when Seniors will stand in their hall for the last time, bidding "farewell" to old friends.

Gail McIntyre and Arlene Leisenring enter the auditorium for the first meeting of the 81 juniors who will escort seniors at their graduation.

Leading up to the final event in the high school life of seniors come many preparations. Senior Class Day on June 2 included the class luncheon at the Brown Palace and the Senior Class Play, "Ask Any Girl." This comedy was presented for the unforgettable enjoyment of the Senior Class by a cast of 16 from Senior Drama.

Candidates for Junior Escorts were narrowed early in March. These girls had to have a 'B' average and no truancies, and had to agree to buy the required gown.

Senior Play

Sherrie Haslouer, Sherry Erickson, Steve Merman, Norm Wretlind, Patty Stubbs, and Carole Moore, members of Senior Drama, discuss sets and casting for "Ask Any Girl."

Royalty

Hall lights and thousands of tiny sparkles from a crown glitter on two enraptured faces. Each girl, alone with her own thoughts, imagines the possibility of having the glistening treasure rest upon her head. Many other pairs of starry eyes regard the crown with envy for those who have worn it and with doubtful hope that they might own this brilliance for one cherished evening. In each tiny crystal the dream of every girl and the pride of her escort is captured.

For those who wish to turn this dream into reality, there will be several hurried and wondrous weeks of exciting competition. Petitions will be passed to friends with the question, "Will you vote for me?"; voting will be held to select finalists, with a second ballot narrowing the choice to three. As the clock strikes the appointed hour on the long-awaited evening, the class president will place the coveted jewel on the chosen queen's head to designate the girl who through the weeks has changed the shadow of doubt to the light of success.

Junior Prom

The dreamy music of the 'K' Men drifted gently as snow while Juniors in lovely array began their prom the evening of December 3. The Denver University Student Union was enhanced by the refreshing colors of blue, silver and white, as glistening snowflakes twinkled in the air. Candidates Ruth Ann Gerber, Kathy Kusel and Kay Ashton anxiously awaited the moment when Junior Class President Randy Christman would crown the queen. When the time came, pert and pretty Kathy Kusel began her glorious reign over "Snowflake Fantasy." Too soon the music was over and the last snowflake was retrieved to be cherished, together with a withered corsage and a tasseled dance bid, as a memory of a fabulous winter wonderland.

Senior Prom

The class of '61 held their Senior Prom at the Shirley Savoy Hotel on the evening of April 22. "Reflections" of the past and of the future, happy memories, and hopeful dreams shone in the faces of couples transformed by evening attire and the rapturous music of the Maurice Cole Orchesra. Prom co-chairman Sue Clark and Steve Tanberg worked long and hard to make this night a true highlight of the senior year. Those who joined the queen competition were all hopeful that their own image might be reflected in the jewels of the crown, but only five of the eleven could be semi-finalists. Those receiving this honor were Ann Fowler, Judy Gruenwald, Melanie MacFarland, Carol Paine, and Joan Zietz.

During the morning a show was presented in two assemblies, and class councils convened at "Round Tables" to discuss plans. Classes were dismissed at noon, and shortly after the closing of the "Jousting Tournament," the traditional All-City track meet, the grounds were deserted. Everyone was back by evening, however, to view the talent of all three classes and to hear the announcement of the winners whose queen would rule as "Queen of the Castle." Couples completed the day's festivities by dancing to the music of Bill Nikkel's band.

Sports

The final pep-talk and the last minute instructions have been given, and the crowd buzzes with pre-game excitement. Waiting for the opening whistle, the players have observed the opposing team with a question mark in their minds. In their first huddle of the game, the tenseness and excitement can be clearly discerned on every countenance. As the nose-guards cast grey shadows across the determined faces, every player's eyes are bright with the spark of competitive spirit.

In a few seconds these boys will be pitting their physical and mental skills against their opponents in an effort toward victory. Through their attempts they will bring an awareness to the school that winning is not all-important, but that team spirit, good sportsmanship and supreme endeavor are the lasting values of each game. The enlightenment of striving together which our students gain from team and group participation is far more important than the superficial shadows of winning or losing.

South Ties for City Championship

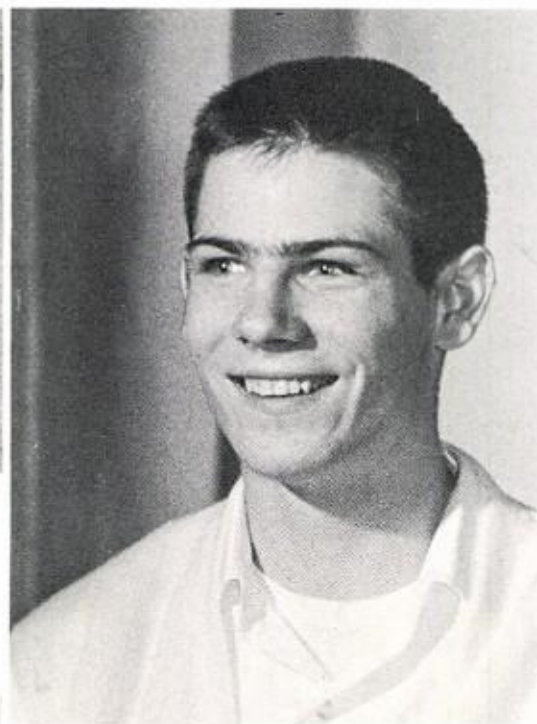

South's line opens a hole for a first down.

South's Rebels completed a successful season in a tie with George Washington for the Denver league title. The Patriots spoiled South's designs on both city and state, but Washington lost to West for the resulting tie. The outstanding performances of backs Bill Finlay and Jim Hoops and linemen Joe Reichardt and Ken Bjork led South past the other Denver contenders.

The slower and greener Lancers were overwhelmed as Jim Hoops, Bill Finlay and Tom Moss scored two touchdowns apiece to lead the Rebel scoring. Before the period had ended, Jim Hoops broke away for an 85-yard run. South tallied again on a pass and was threatening on the Manual 20 when the final gun sounded.

When in the second period the Rebel team was faced with a fourth and one situation on their 27, Jim Hoops crashed through the line for a first down and, seven plays later, scampered in for a touchdown. A minute later Tom Moss returned a punt for 69 yards. Jim Hoops scored twice, Ron Tracey once, and Bill Finlay closed with a final touchdown.

West

South stopped West's passing attack to defeat the Cowboys 26-0. The Rebel defense kept West to 34 yards on the ground and a minus 15 yards in the air. Bill Finlay ran for two touchdowns and passed to Tom Moss for another to lead the South offensive. Jim Hoops scored over center, and Tom Moss kicked two extra points to complete South's total.

Bill Finlay turns his end ahead of pursuing West players.

South completed its football season with a 14-6 victory over North's Vikings. An eighty-yard run by Jim Hoops in the first quarter gave South an early lead. North countered with a touchdown set up by an intercepted pass. A ninety-six yard run, followed by a one-yard plunge by Bill Finlay, furnished the final score. Tom Moss added the two extra points.

Juniors

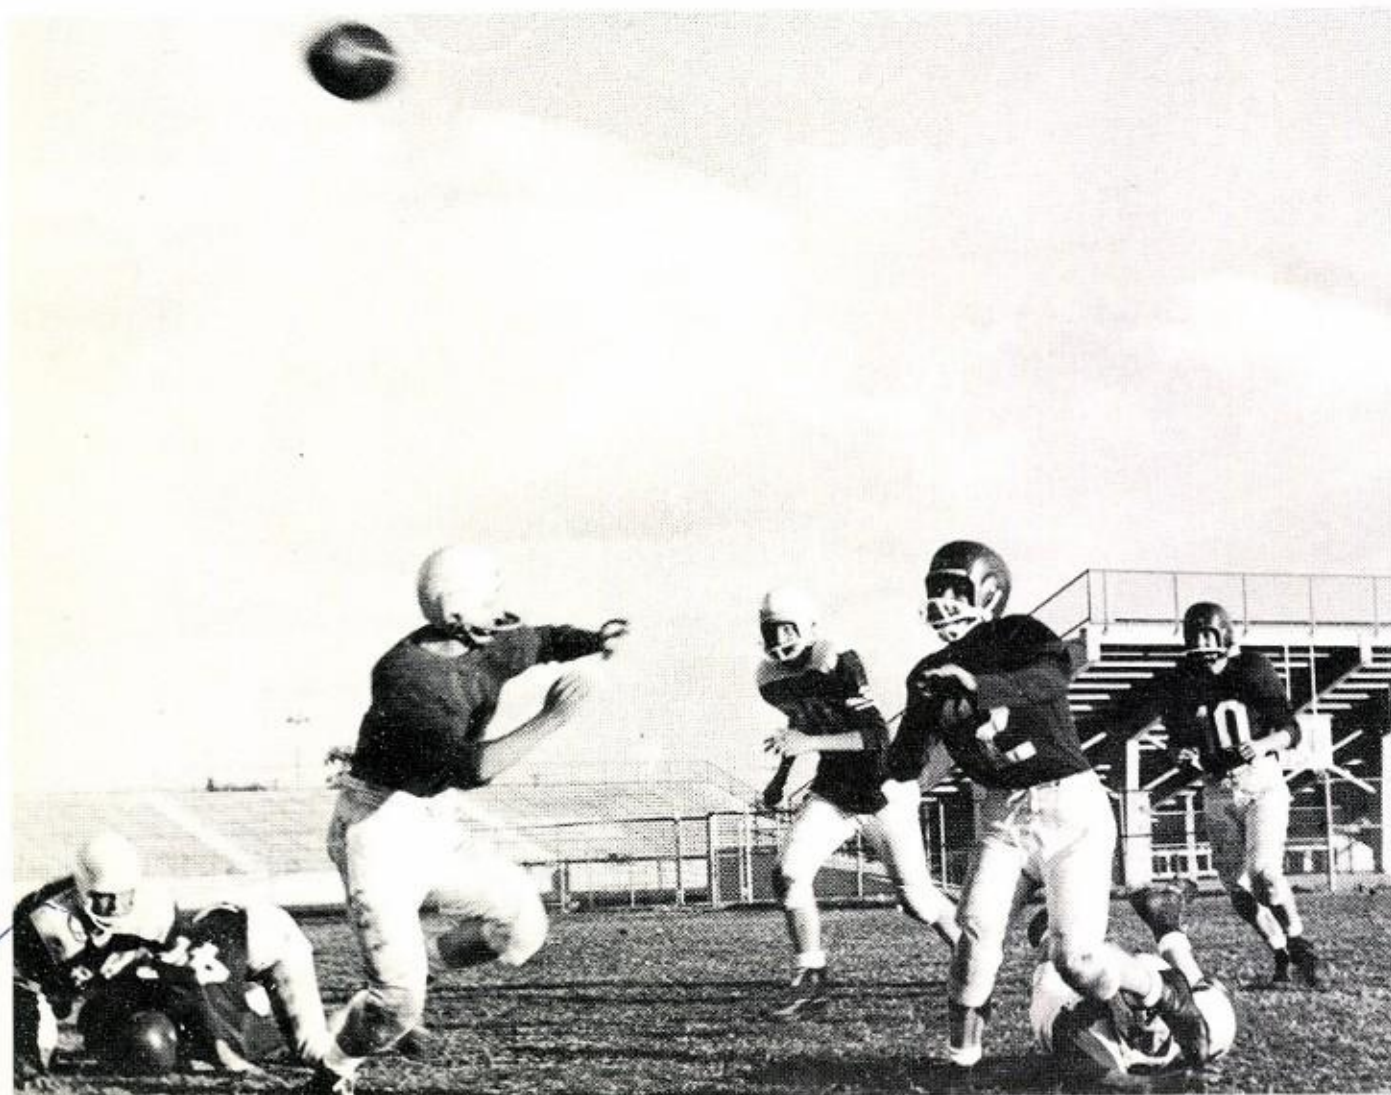

A South player succumbs to a tackler after making a substantial gain.

South's aggressive junior varsity won five games to place third in the city standings. The team fell to Washington and East but gained valuable experience during the season. In addition to their success as a team, the juniors provided a strong backing to make the varsity a well-rounded squad.

South's basketball team suffered a series of hot and cold streaks in a strong bid for the city championship. After losing to Washington and East during a score drought, Rebels finished the first round in a three-way tie for second place. The second round filled with four victories and four heart-breaking defeats. The season was marked with close competition in all corners, and South remained a team to beat throughout it. Denny Lee, Jim Hoops, Bill Eberly, Del Helton, and Dave Smith, with the support of the rest of the team, made South's season creditable.

North

South overwhelmed North twice, 52-38 and 56-54. In the first game Jim Hoops scored 16 points and Denny Lee scored 12 points to lead the Rebels to victory. South pulled ahead 14-2 in the first six minutes and led the Vikings all the way. The return game was much closer. The lead changed several times in the last quarter, but a layup by Bill Eberly in the last few seconds gave South the close victory. Bill also made 19 points to lead the scoring.

Wally Livingston drives around a North defender for two points.

A West defender fails to stop Barry Rapp's shot.

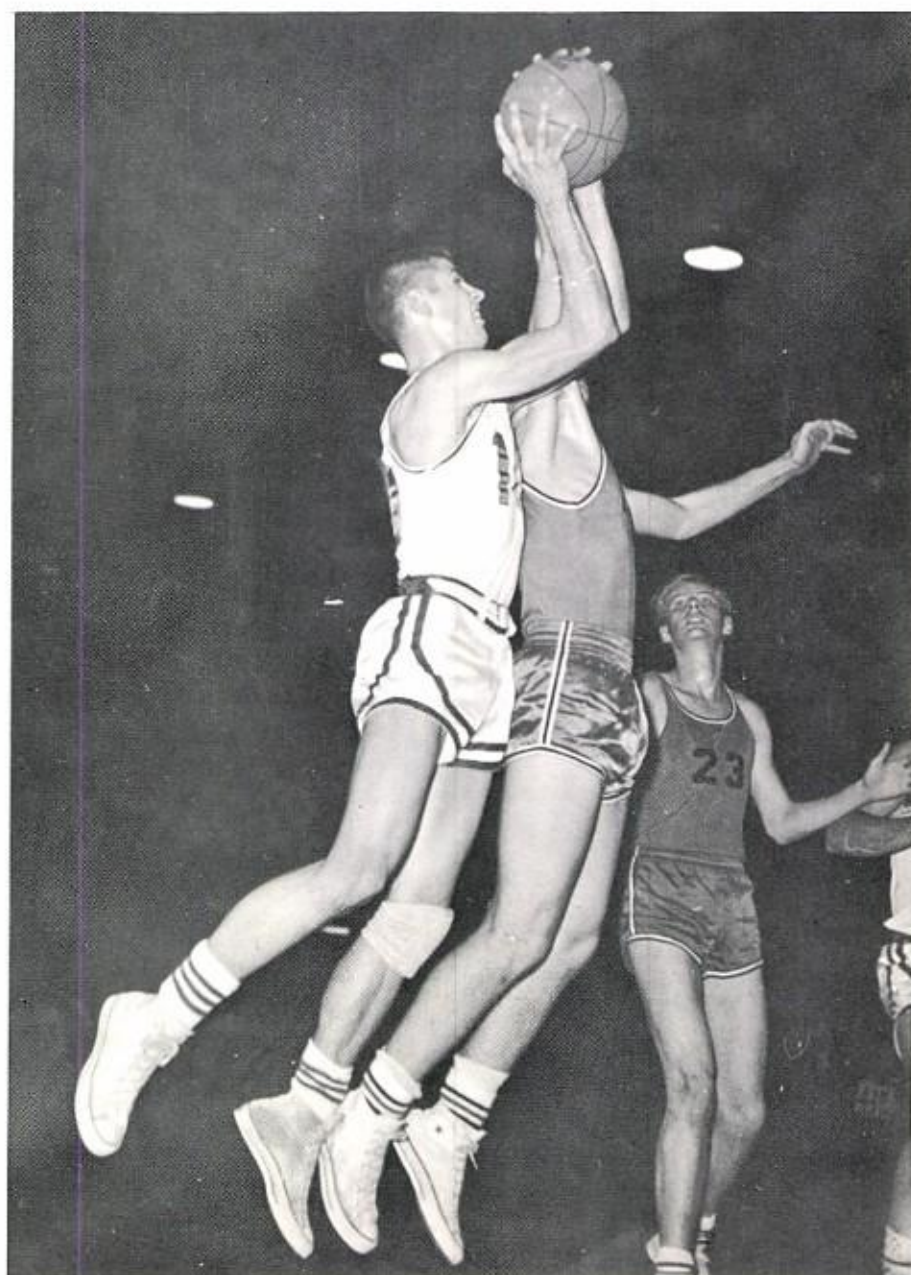

Jefferson

South was too powerful for Jefferson in both of their meetings. Bill Eberly and Barry Rapp provided the punch in the first game, and South led the whole way. Jefferson hung on for the first three quarters, but South pulled further ahead to win 43-38. South rebounded from their loss to West to overwhelm the Spartans 59-37. The Rebels started slowly, and were tied 9-9 at the end of the first quarter. After that they started to roll and exploded in the final period for 21 points.

West

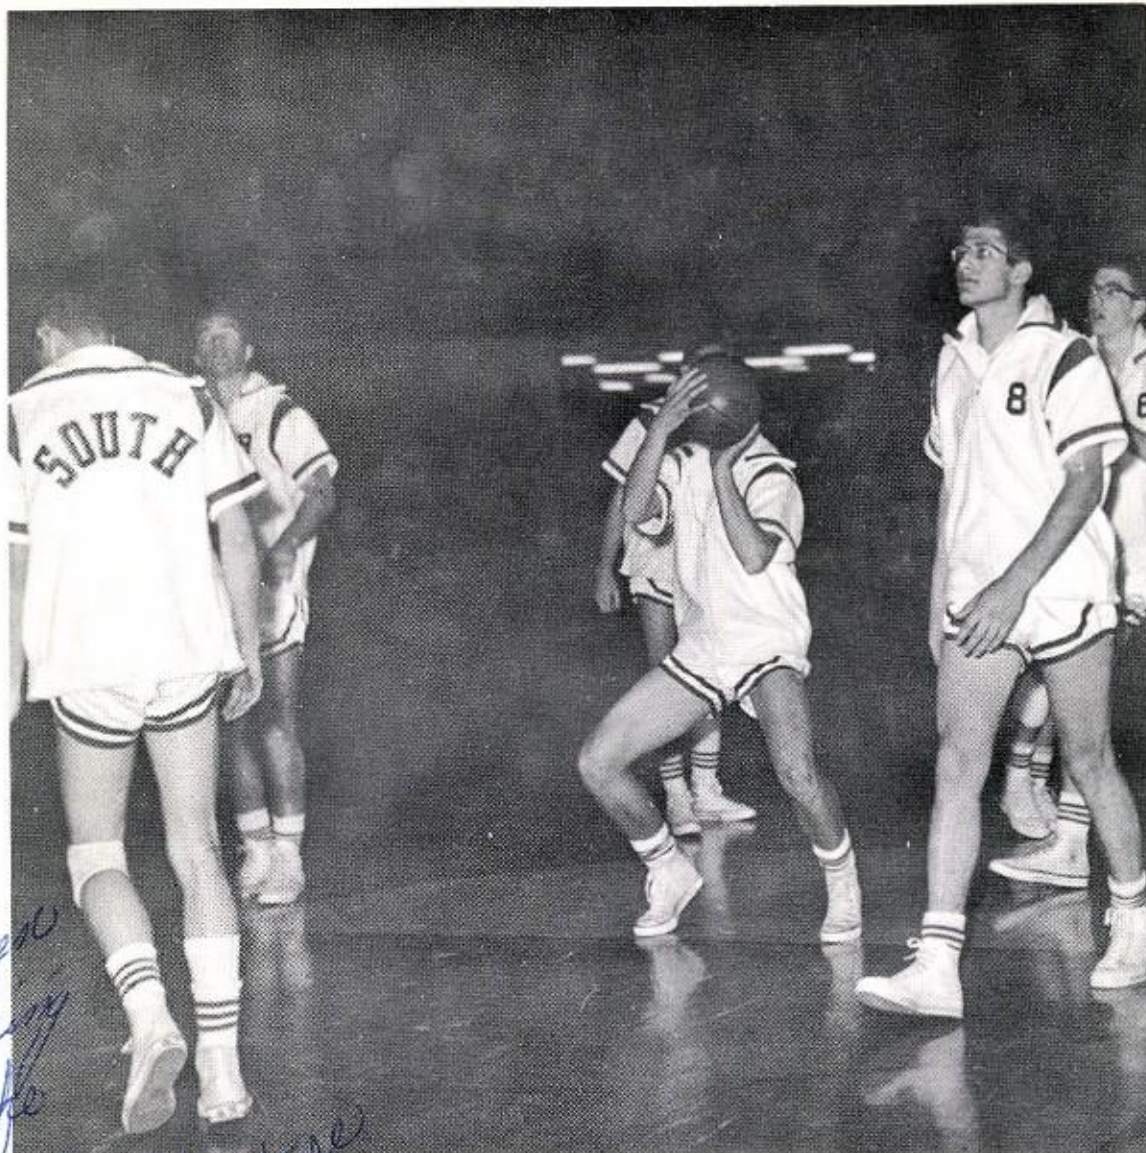

South and West battled to a draw with one victory apiece. Denny Lee led South to a 49-39 victory by netting 15 points. South trailed by two points at the end of the first quarter, but pulled ahead by the half and stayed there for the rest of the game. Denny Lee's 22 points in the second game were not enough, and West edged South 55-52. South, trailing 44-40 at the end of three quarters, battled their way into the lead, but the Cowboys rallied to win.

Denny Lee demonstrates the determination which made him South's top scorer.

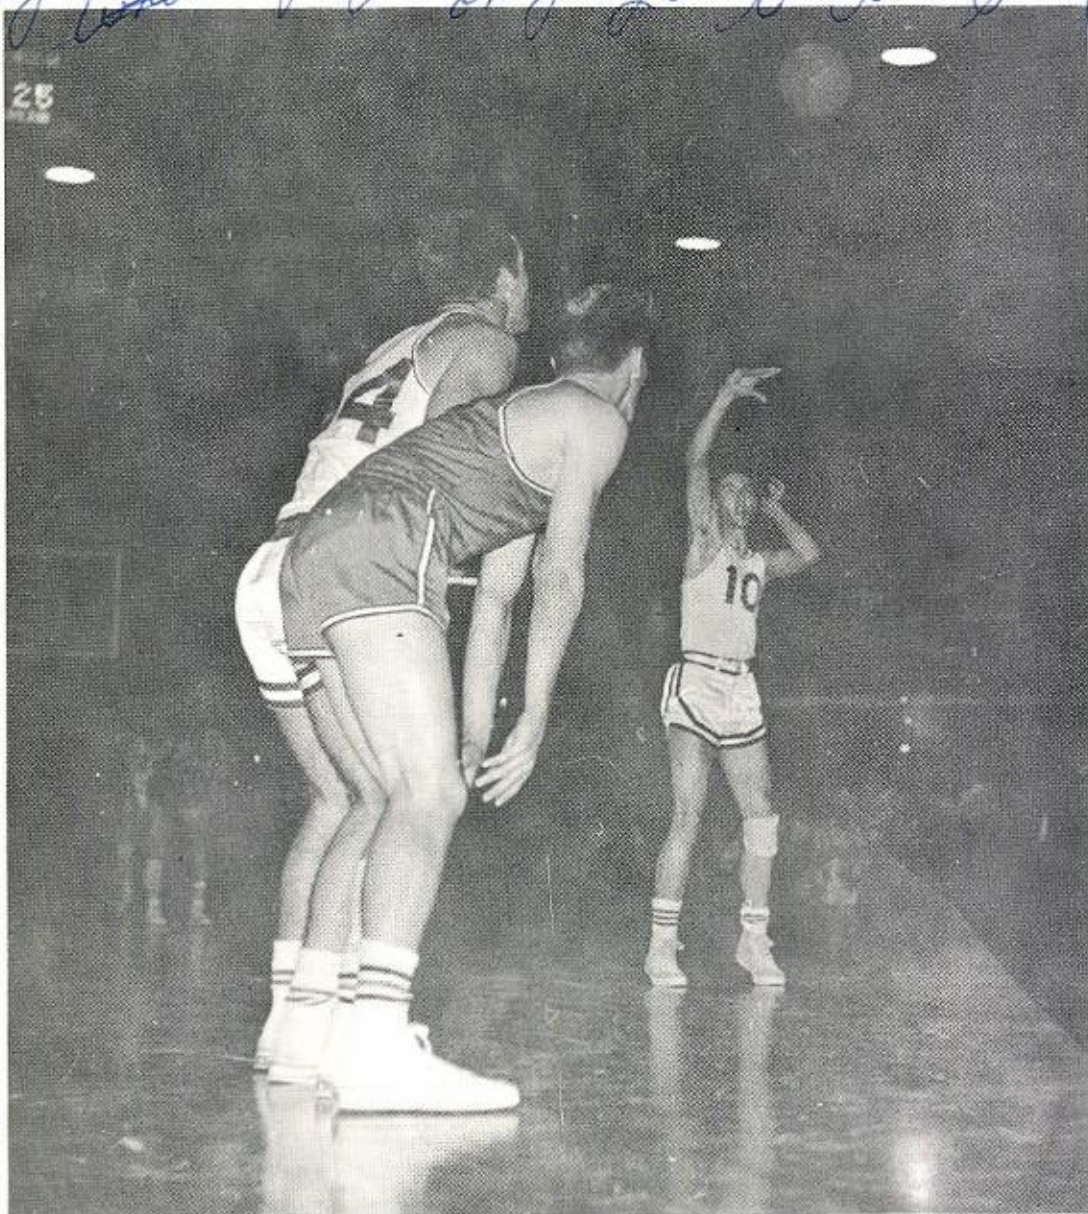

East

East proved to be a taboo to South's basketball hopes. In the first game the Angels took advantage of a South scoring slump to win 56-39. The two teams reached a 12-12 stalemate in the first period before East rallied to win. In the return match South and East traded the lead often. South led for much of the game, but fell behind by five points at the beginning of the fourth quarter. South rallied and pulled ahead of East but could not stay. The Angels scored 7 quick points to win 60-54.

South's basketball team warms up before the game.

you say something like

Washington

Washington followed the Angel's example to hand South a pair of defeats. The Rebels could not seem to do anything right in the first game as they continued in a scoring slump. The Patriots won 47-40. Washington had a tougher time in the second game. South held Washington during all but the last four minutes. South led by one point with four minutes to play, but Washington pulled ahead with several quick baskets. South could not hold the pace and lost 57-51.

Lincoln

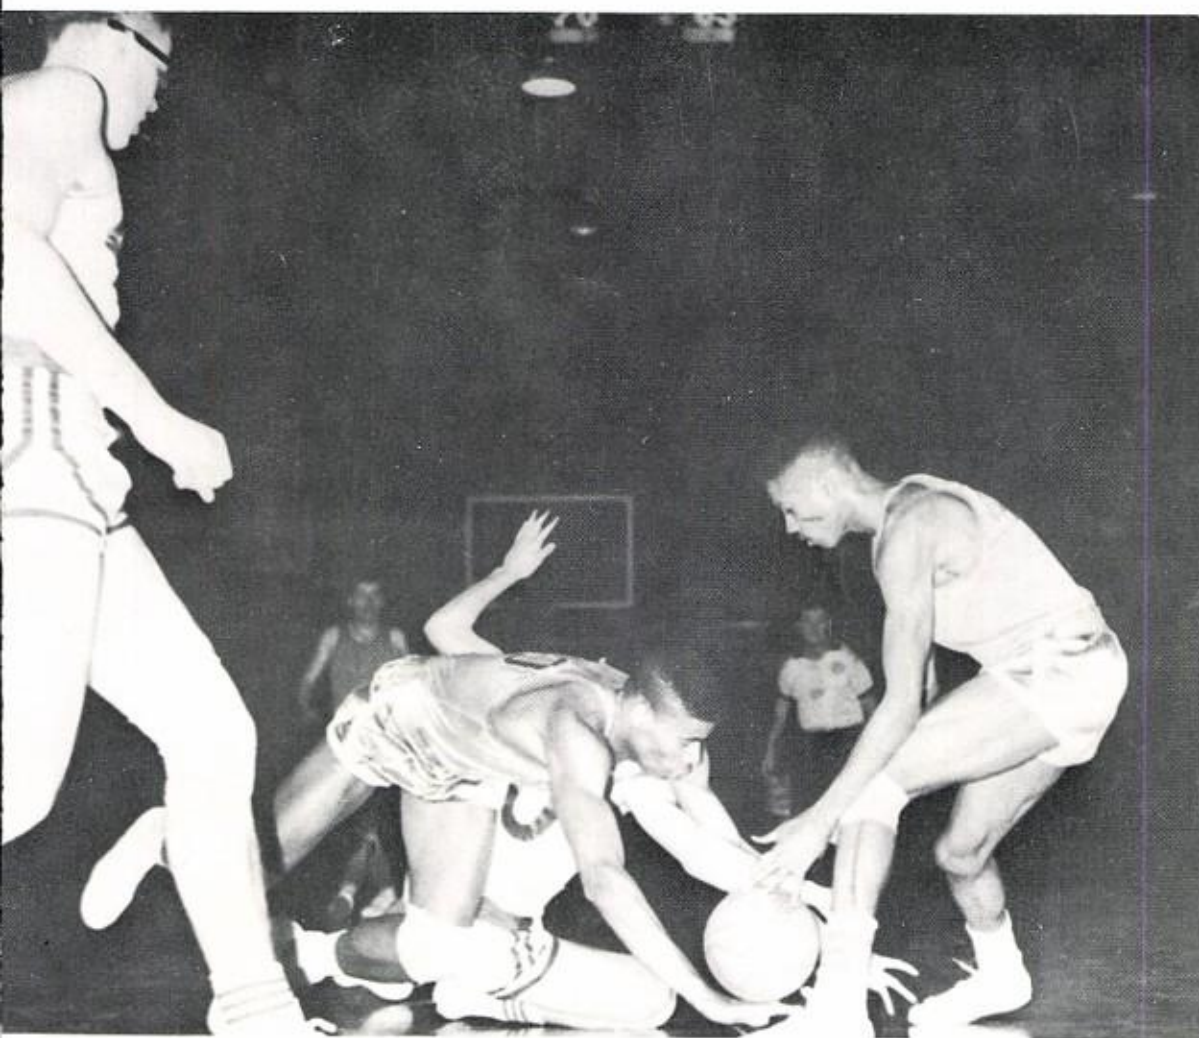

South rebounded from losses to East and Washington to defeat Abraham Lincoln twice. The Rebels broke loose at the beginning and went on to defeat the Lancers 53-38. Denny Lee scored 15 points to lead the scoring of the game. In the second game South came back sluggishly from two successive losses to beat Lincoln 40-36. The Rebels built an early lead, but watched it melt slowly away. They held only a two point lead in the last seconds, but Denny Lee spoiled the Lancer's hope for a victory by sinking two free throws for South.

A Manual player attempts to drive around Denny Lee.

Manual

Close competition and excitement ruled at both games with Manual. South emerged the victor from one and the defeated in the other. The Rebels halted a Manual winning spree in their first meeting with a last-second shot by Denny Lee. For three full quarters the teams ran even, and Manual appeared to gain control in the fourth. A late rally gave the Rebels a victory 53-52. In the second game, Manual had to beat South for 2nd place and a shot at the title. South led throughout the game until a series of fouls broke their grip, and Manual continued to win 60-53.

Denny Lee struggles with two Manual players for control of the ball.

Juniors

The Rebel Junior Varsity team, under the guidance of Coach Yates, finished the season with an even won-lost record by defeating North twice and every other team except East once. Their speed, willingness and versatility will be a great asset to next year's team. John Duran led the scoring with almost 15 points per game. Bill Young, Ron Tracey, Don Lujan, Ken Sevcik and Curt Becker aided the high scorer with their shooting and ball handling ability.

Wrestling

Rebel grapplers gained experience under the guidance of Coach Conklin, but bad luck and injuries kept them from realizing their full potential. In team competition the Rebels won three matches and lost four. They competed in twenty dual meets, winning more matches individually than they lost. In the city meet they placed fifth, with Jim Carroll and Lynn Brokaw placing third in their weight classes. Dave Shelton placed second, qualifying for state, but illness kept him from competing. With six lettermen returning next year, the wrestlers have hopes for more honors.

Clubs and Organizations

As the descending sun casts its warm rays across a room, students gather in their various organizations. Joking and laughter run high while afternoon lights and shadows play across happy faces. In another part of the room away from the noise, the sponsor and president confer on a special point to be presented to the club. This is the time of pleasant confusion before the meeting begins.

When the gavel raps, the members will assume their places, and the order of business for the day will commence. Discussing plans for a money-making scheme or adding the final details to the annual service project may occupy part of the meeting time. Friendly debates will be waged among three or four students over a controversial suggestion. These young people, meeting weekly or bi-weekly with other individuals, are learning the importance of group work. They realize the brightness of mutual solutions and the disappointment of irresolvable difficulties which are the lights and shadows of existing and working with others.

Lynn Brokaw Head Boy

An active participant in school government and athletics, Lynn Brokaw enthusiastically headed our school as Student Body President. During his sophomore year he served as a class representative and followed in his junior year as Junior Class President. In the All-School Elections of 1960 Lynn was elected Head Boy. Football, track, wrestling and membership in Key Club were also among his activities.

Lorene Gerton Head Girl

Concert pianist, member of concert choir, Tri-Hi-Y participant, and Honorary Cadet are some of the activities to which Lorene Gerton, Head Girl, lends charm and grace. She has outstandingly served our school with her talented piano playing and as Head Girl during the year 1960-1961.

Student Council also assumed responsibility for All-School, class, and cheerleader elections, and the inauguration assembly for school officers. Inter-Club Council

One of the most important functions of Inter-Club Council this year was to re-instate and formulate policies for after-school meetings for South's clubs and to prevent conflicts in meeting times and dates.

I.C.C. originally began when Student Council experienced difficulties in solving club problems. Today, its membership is made up of the elected and appointed representatives of the clubs of our school.

Again this year I.C.C. encouraged school spirit with the sale of Booster Buttons. The proceeds of these sales supplemented club treasuries.

After boldly advertising a new, colorful and very secret 1961 JOHNNY REB, the staff proceeded to assemble this yearbook with desperate and courageous endeavor. For one period each day the members of the staff worked furiously and secretly in Room 259, and during innumerable weekends of the year closeted themselves in dank cellars to observe that time-honored yearbook custom—DEADLINE.

In March when the last page was shipped to the publisher, the staff relaxed and began to enjoy the rest of the year by electing officers, checking galley proofs, and by planning for the next year's annual. But their greatest triumph came on the day when the annuals were delivered. When the last coupon had been stuck on the last spindle and the last annual distributed to the last late little sophomore, the staff sighed in weary contentment. A year's work was finally done—the 1961 JOHNNY REB.

Confederate Staff

The Confederate Staff published South's newspaper, sold "S" stickers, Rebel pennants and flags, and distributed the traditional Howdy Day cards.

In October the Confederate Staff participated in a journalism workshop at Loretto Heights, and in December another workshop held in Boulder. Press Day, an annual competitive journalistic contest, was attended by staff members of the Johnny Reb and the Confederate.

Artistically decorating the new Confederate Lounge, otherwise known as a basement news room, was the major project of this year's Confederate Staff.

South Scholastic Society includes students who have a high B average and no C's during the previous academic year.

The first meeting of the semester elected Rick Chapman, president, Dana Bennett, vice-president, and Kitty Bowman and Ann Fowler to serve as secretary and treasurer.

Maintaining a Triple S scholarship board in Room 103 was the organization's primary function. This bulletin board announced scholarships, university requirements and information for college bound students.

Mr. Buren Carr, college counselor and sponsor of Triple S, aided members by answering many questions at the monthly meetings.

Future

F. T. A. accomplishes much each year in preparing students for the teaching profession and in giving them aims and objectives for their future careers. Among the useful projects of the club were the selling of Homecoming corsages to earn scholarship money, providing a student tutoring service and furnishing substitutes for teachers. Speakers were present at nearly all meetings, talking on some phase of the two F. T. A. themes, "Keys to Good Teaching" and "Doors Open to Teachers." During the first semester, qualities of good teaching such as preparation, tolerance, and knowledge of subject matter were emphasized. In the second half of the year, the club stressed levels of education and subject fields in which a teacher may serve.

Early on a Thursday morning, members of the Future Teachers of America's executive board confer on club policy regulating the tutoring service.

A part of one of the largest junior organizations in the nation, the South High Junior Red Cross Club offers greatly appreciated services at Fitzsimons and Veterans Hospitals throughout the year. The members of Junior Red Cross give talent shows at Denver hospitals and help cheer orphans with Christmas and Easter parties.

With the help of South's Chess Club, the Junior Red Cross members teach chess to the patients at Fitzsimons and Veterans Hospitals and make sure that the patients always have opponents for an interesting afternoon of competition.

Hi-Y is a boy's service club which tries to create and maintain good Christian attitudes and high standards of living. The club, which met every other Tuesday, participated in many charitable activities during the year. In the fall they held formal and informal initiations, gave the Thanksgiving assembly and helped at the Y.M.C.A. Christmas tree lot. In the spring, Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y took part in the "Youth in Government" program in which they took over local city and state governments for a day. The model legislature where they debated bills proved to be very interesting and fun-filled.

Tri-Hi-Y

One of the largest service clubs at South, Tri-Hi-Y serves both South High School and the city of Denver. At Christmas time the girls of Tri-Hi-Y sell Christmas trees for the Y. M. C. A. and collect food for needy families in Denver. In the spring the members enthusiastically support their Youth and Government project. Tri-Hi-Y sponsors the Easter Assembly at South each year.

Because of the large number of applications for membership in the club, a new rule was put into effect this year requiring a 2.3 grade average. In addition, for the new member's initiation Tri-Hi-Y had the girls perform beneficial services for South.

Key Club

South's Key Club, easily recognized in white jackets with yellow emblems, is affiliated with the Kiwanis International. Under the direction of this international organization, they and the other Denver Key Clubs collected for the United Fund and CARE crusades. They also helped the Student Council collect money for the ZOTS (Zoo of Tomorrow Society) during assemblies. Working toward high ideals of citizenship and service, they kept the center hall calendar up to do date, checked coats at dances and assisted at P.T.A. meetings. One of the highlights of their activity-filled year was the Key Klub Klomp, held jointly with Thomas Jefferson High School in November.

Debate Club

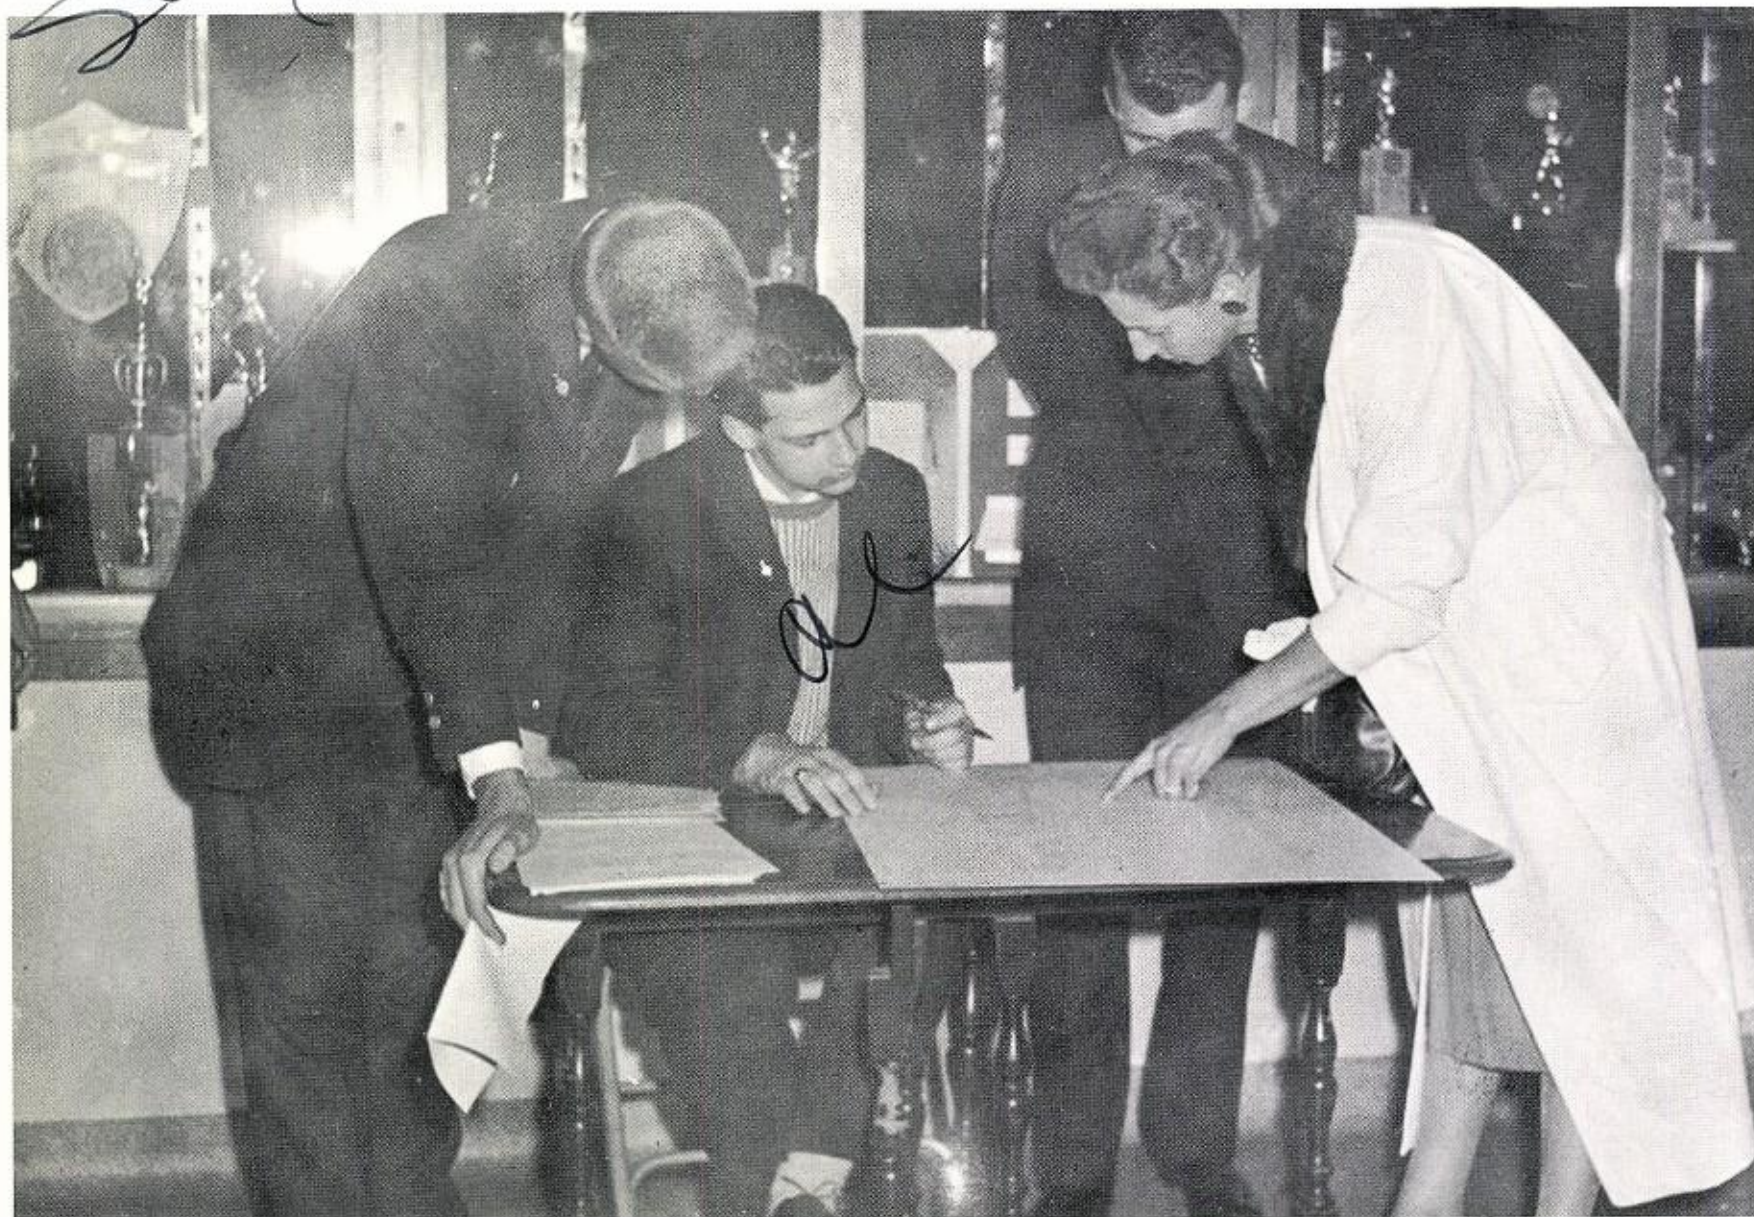

The South High chapter of the National Forensic League, called Debate Club, was an active organization in city, state and district meets.

On November 10, the club sponsored an invitational meet for novice debaters, in which the participants debated the resolution to significantly strengthen the United Nations. South copped three ribbons in this event.

The annual Student Congress met at Cheyenne on October 5, with Mr. Mitick, club sponsor, representing South as a judge.

Again this year, the Governor Shafroth extemporaneous speaking contest was held at South for Denver student speakers.

Club meetings were conducted primarily to add members to the club, to organize speaking events, and to actively promote interest, skill in public speaking and debating among South High students. Members participated in many competitive activities throughout the city, state and district.

Al Kleyhauer registers participants in the novice debate held on November 10.

The after-school meetings of Young Republicans, held on Mondays, always bring a large and enthusiastic group of politically-minded students.

Republicans

Because this was an election year, the members of Young Republicans did much to further their candidates' campaigns. They distributed literature, spent many hours working at Republican headquarters and engaged some local political figures to speak at the meetings. After the elections were completed, the club settled down to a normal pace of meetings, parties and interesting excursions. Sponsored by Mr. Mitick, Young Republicans met every Monday at 3:30 to learn more about the Republican party and its ideals.

Art Club

The purpose of the South High Art Club is to promote interest in art and to help the members become better acquainted with the many types of art work. Many excursions to the Denver art museums furthered this objective during the school year. Some of these trips were guided tours, while other were unguided, stressing informal viewing by members of Art Club.

The original Christmas bulletin board, snowflakes against a mosaic background of blues and greens, was the result of many hours of hard work on the part of the artists, as were the second floor showcase displays of skaters on a winter wonderland.

Oriental, medieval, and Spanish are but a few of the types of art discussed and studied by the enthusiasts of the Art Club.

As the last weeks of the spring semester beckoned South's student body to the great outdoors, a group of urgent salesmen pressured their fellow classmates to buy a magazine. These enthusiastic solicitors were members of Folio Leaves, South's literary club, and their product was TOWERS, the culmination of a year's literary effort. Included in TOWERS are short stories, poems and essays written by the members of the club.

Other activities in which Folio Leaves participated this year were the writing, production and direction of Purple and White Day festivities, editing of manuscripts submitted by club members, and the awarding of an annual prize to the member whose Christmas story was voted "the best."

Southern Masqueraders

The presentation of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" by Southern Masqueraders in the fall of the school year was the organization's most important production. Under the direction of Mrs. Nordstrom, club sponsor, the Masqueraders worked diligently to effectively stage this play and to increase the skill and stagecraft of their student actors and actresses.

Several of the young thespians performed at local workshops which were held to train prospective actors from the new high schools.

Competitive try-outs in September and January supplied the club with talent, and bi-monthly meetings were well attended because frequent skits and discussions made them especially interesting to the members.

Aquads

A newly organized club at South this year was the girl's swimming club, the South High School Aquads. In this organization girls have an opportunity to improve their swimming form and to learn synchronized swimming.

By improving their style and learning aquatic stunts, the swimmers can win special individual awards such as pins and pin guards.

With a graceful leap, Peggy Oughtred dives from the George Washington diving board.

A group of girl rifle enthusiasts met on the rifle range each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon to enjoy and perfect their shooting. Sponsored by Mr. Carr, Girls' Rifle Club chooses members who demonstrate interest or skill in riflery and marksmanship. Beginners have a wonderful opportunity to learn safety in handling a rifle, and those who already know how to shoot have many chances to become more proficient. During the year the girls worked to earn medals for their marksmanship and participated in several contests, including the State Meet, which was held in May, and the national competition of early March.

Rebel Rollers

Each week South High's roller skating club meets at Denver Skateland. By roller skating as a part of the club, the members get reduced rates at this rink. Competitive racing is a major part of their skating program. Every week the girls of the club race against the boys in highly competitive relays. At the end of each year the relay team which has won the greatest number of relays receives a team trophy. There is much friendly rivalry between the members of Rebel Rollers for this prize.

Les

The graceful ease of the figure skaters and the speed and adroitness of the several champion hockey players showed the exacting and strenuous preparation of skating techniques practiced by the members of Les Patineurs. Each year they have competed with the other Denver high schools for honors in these fields.

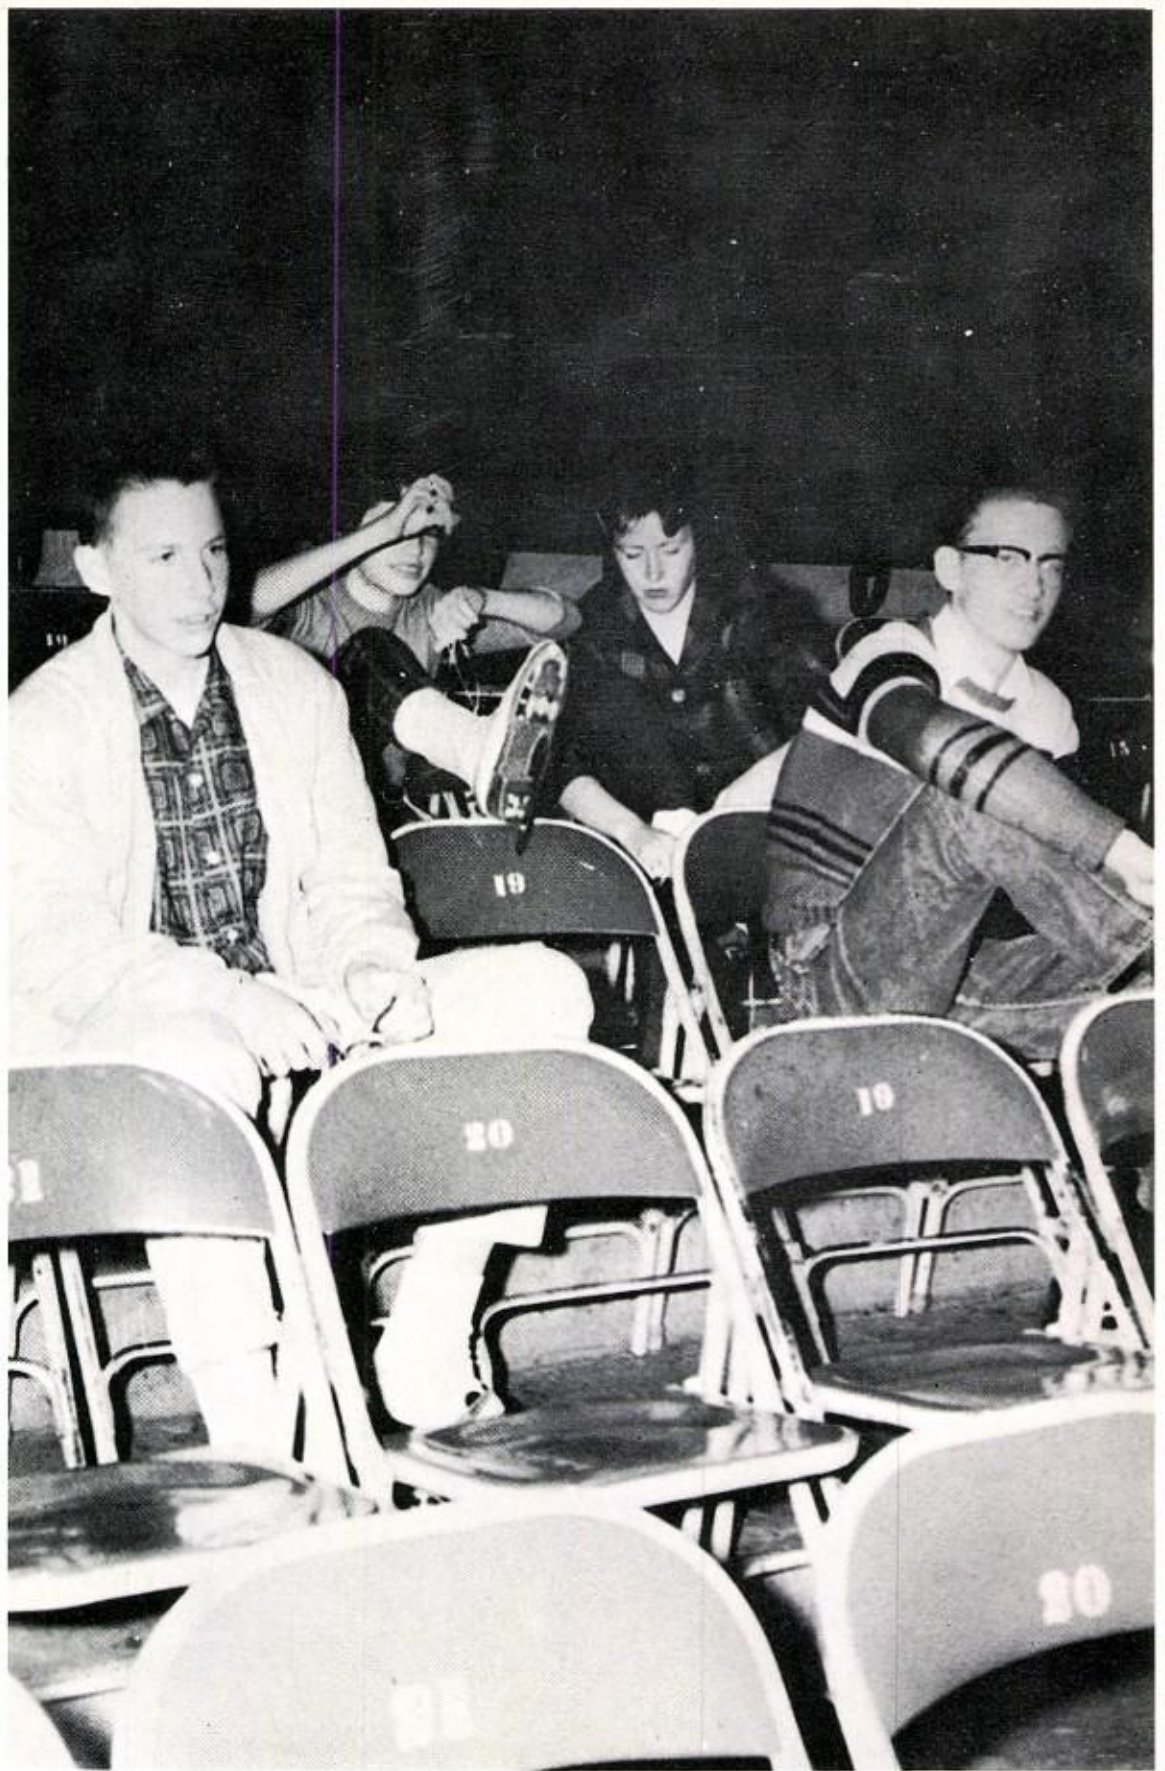

In addition to the occasional skating parties at Evergreen and Homewood, the members skated every Wednesday night at the Denver University rink in the field house.

Tennis Club

Rebalte, the South High girls' tennis club, was formed this year to give girl tennis players an opportunity to increase their skill, to participate in tournament play or to learn as beginners.

Before the organization was able to hold any matches, winter snows kept the members from the tennis courts. As spring thaws set in, however, the girls returned to the nets to volley and to drive in tournament competition.

Beginners, intermediates and expert tennis players were encouraged to join the club and their activities throughout the months of school.

The six vivacious pom-pon girls, who are affectionately called "pom-poms" by South students, were colorfully arrayed in purple skirts and white sweaters as they swung in rhythm to "The Saints" and "Dixie."

The pom-pon girls were chosen from the Pep Club last spring, and they spent many long hours creating original and animated pom-pon routines to entertain at assemblies and to stimulate spirit at South games.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps in high school is necessary for the physical and mental development of military-minded young men. They are given instruction in military leadership, first aid, map reading, weapons and marksmanship, physical fitness, and command and drill. These courses provide a good background for those who wish to go on with a career in the armed forces.

There are several opportunities each year for the practical demonstration of cadet skills. At the regimental review which is held in the fall, officers have a chance to display their ability in practical command. Federal inspection is held in the spring to display what the cadets have learned during the past year. Drill and rifle matches are also held between the various schools. R.O.T.C. is not all work, however, for the cadets present an annual dinner dance in March.

Brigade Commander

At the city-wide Regimental Trial, held during the fall semester, the three top officers from Denver's eight high schools went through a rugged ninety minute written test and an oral test to display their ability to command practical drill. Colonel Richard Marcus from South was chosen from these competitors to head the city's approximate twelve hundred cadets in the capacity of Brigade Commander. As Brigade Commander, Marcus is responsible for all activities of the cadets, including Federal inspection, ordinance inspection, the two parades and the annual spring regimental dinner dance.

Academics

A teacher standing in the quiet classroom makes preparations for his first class. The criss-cross of the window lattice combines with the human shadow on the blackboard to create strange patterns with the morning's written lesson. From the halls can be heard muffled voices and footsteps and the distant bang of lockers as students arrive. This is the teacher's quiet hour before the busyness of the academic day.

When classes begin the instructor will focus all of his talents and energies in an effort to mold facts into new ideas or to help the student examine the worth of opinions preconceived. Pupils will hold animated discussions and will fit unrelated pieces together to solve the puzzles of human existence. At some unsuspected moment the impact of the leader's words may cause apathy to flame into inquisitiveness. From this, knowledge is born of the unknown and light shines through the shadows of chaos.

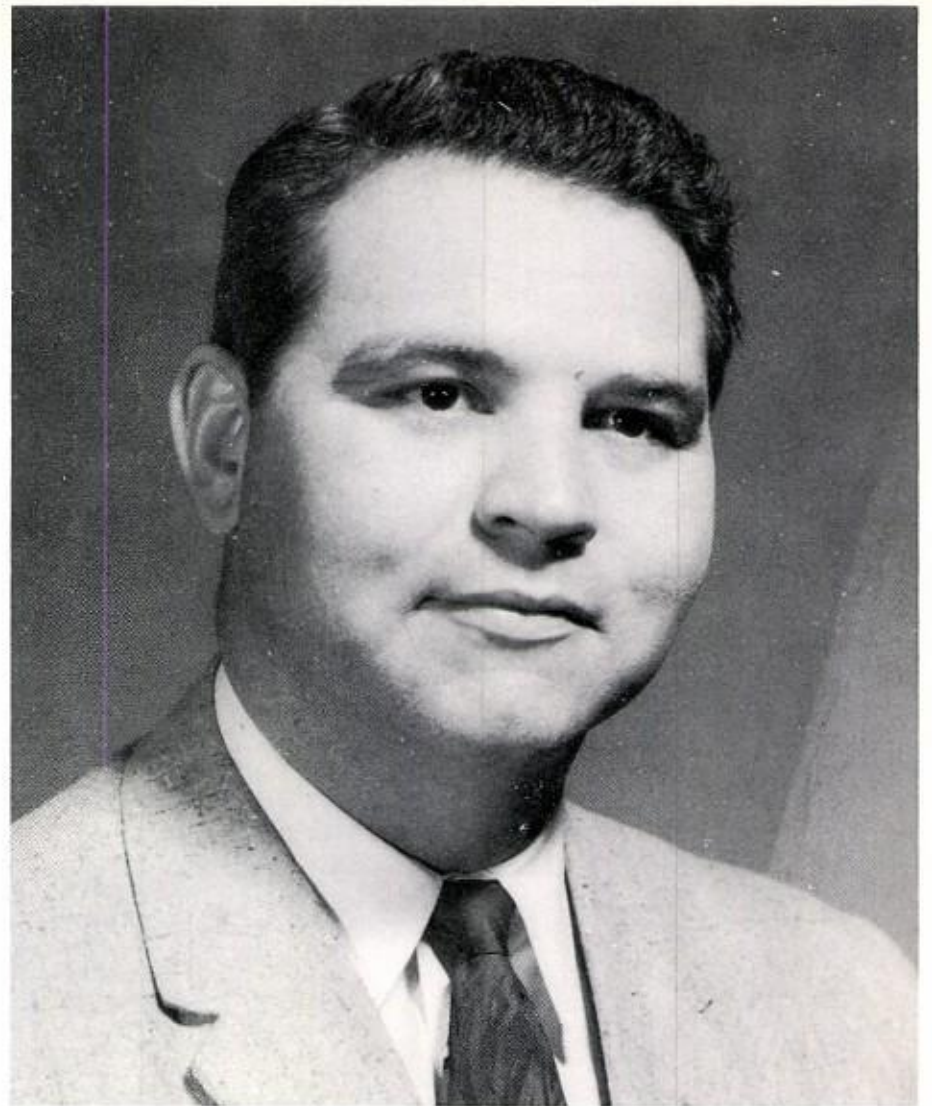

Principal

Dr. Anderson

Dr. Anderson, welcomed to South this year, was faced with the two-fold problem of reorganizing the administration under different policies and adjusting the school schedule from a twelve to an eight period day. He has met the transition ably and has kept the school running in an efficient manner. With eagerness and enthusiasm for school activities, he has proved himself to be a worthy friend to all Rebels.

South's principal, assistant principal, dean and co-ordinator head the administrative staff. Part of their time is involved with personal counseling and student discipline, but an equal effort is spent in administrative duties to achieve smoother operation of all school activities and a high quality of education. Candidates for class offices and dance queens, and delegates to inter-school conferences must be screened by the dean. The assistant principal also determines each semester's class schedule and the procedures for fire drills and air raids. The dean works in conjunction with the Parent Teacher Association and also helps the student council in planning and organizing a wide variety of student activities.

Administration

Achievement and attendance records of students, the weekly bulletin, care of the lost and found, and the conveyance of telephone messages to students and teachers comprise only a part of the responsibility of the office staff. In the health department, records of physical examinations and shots administered to each student at school are filed. Assistance may be obtained from the librarians in finding reference materials or books for reading pleasure. All monetary transactions pass through the treasurer's office, and class and club treasurers co-ordinate their work there. These are the staffs which are responsible for the smooth flow of South's affairs.

The counseling department provides guidance for the high school student in planning his studies and his future. Each person is assigned a counselor who helps him choose subjects which will be of use and benefit to him in his chosen field. Also available is a college counselor for advisement concerning college choice, admission requirements and scholarships. Of additional assistance to the student body is the vocational counselor who aids in finding full-time or part-time work. Co-ordinating and directing the work of the various counselors and implementing policies of other school administrators is the South High co-ordinator. The teamwork of these leaders provides each student with individualized assistance in evaluating his interests and abilities and in formulating goals for his future development.

Mr. Carr, college counselor at South, provides help to all students who are puzzled about college entrance exams and scholarship requirements.

Language

As the countries of the world are brought closer and closer together, the language department has become an increasingly important part of South's curriculum. Students are able to better understand the various cultures and traditions of the world through the courses offered in French, German, Spanish, Latin and Russian. This year a language laboratory was instituted at South in which students can listen to their voices and thus develop a more exact pronunciation of the words.

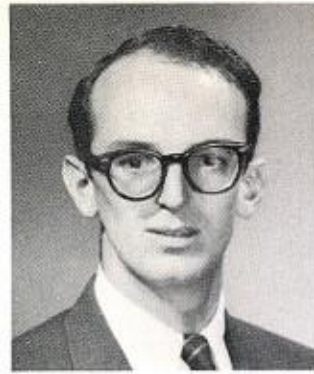

South's new language lab provides an interesting and helpful addition to language classes. Foreign idioms and dialectical differences become alive for students when they are able to hear them being spoken.

Instructing students in the grammatical technicalities of our language and helping them become more proficient in the expression of their thoughts are the tasks of the English teachers. The required composition and literature courses are supplemented with a wide variety of other subjects. By writing original stories in the creative writing classes or by recording news items in a journalism course, the individual finds an outlet for his talents. Through the drama and speech sequences, a person learns to express himself more fully and often gains the social poise that is needed today in all areas of work.

Social Science

Through the social science department students acquire a clearer conception of the basic ideals upon which man has developed. As a result of study in American History, the individual is aware of our heritage. American Government, International Relations, Modern Europe and Economics deal with the world as it is today and give the student an idea of the importance of his position as a citizen in modern society. A student of sociology and psychology is presented with a picture of the social problems which must be dealt with in our present world.

Science

Future scientists who plan for careers in physical, chemical and biological science have an excellent basic training at South. Students of physics and chemistry experience the advantages of laboratory experimentation in addition to text-book study. In the biological sciences a pupil may gain specialized introduction to the areas of biology, zoology, botany and physiology. Geological field trips and star gazing add practical experience and interest to the study of geology and astronomy, while laboratory instruction in darkroom techniques and creative picture taking utilizes theory learned in the photography class. The Advanced Placement Chemistry Class challenges the sharp minds of exceptionally capable students with college level subject matter.

Parakeets, fish and tropical plants are all housed together in South's conservatory, where Mary Howell and Eddy Flock study these living things.

Mathematics

"Something for everyone" is easily the criteria of the mathematics department because courses range from basic mathematics to mathematical analysis. Students may study the fundamentals, learn the basic everyday uses of math, or begin explorations in the use of complicated mathematical formulas. Specialized classes are available for a student who intends to enter the business world. Those pupils who plan to go to college or train for technical careers may perfect skills and develop logical thinking in the algebra-geometry series. The exceptional students have opportunities to challenge their abilities through advanced algebra, geometry, and trigonometry classes.

To Rick Chapman, as to many others, math is a fascinating and challenging field which requires concentration and scientific precision.

Business Education

Preparing young men and women for a variety of vocations in the world of commerce is the objective of the business education department. The future office worker is able to lay his foundation in the business, English and arithmetic sequences. For girls planning secretarial careers, stenography and typing are two classes which are a "must" for efficient work. In the office practice course students learn to operate up-to-date equipment, and they also help the South staff by mimeographing special notices, tests, and other materials.

Diligence and practice are needed for perfection in typing, an important background for future business careers.

Industrial Arts

Tomorrow's architects, engineers and carpenters have the opportunity to receive training through the subjects offered in the industrial arts department. In the wood shops boys learn to use tools effectively to construct useful and decorative items. The new two-windowed ticket booth, which has doubled sales possibilities in the lunchroom, is an example of this workmanship. Working with various metals, learning techniques of welding and applying this knowledge to such uses as making jewelry are the aims of the metal shops. Through mechanical drawing a student is able to better understand the language of the industrialist.

Skills and crafts of metal work are learned and put into use by boys in the metal shop.

Many beautiful and useful articles for the home are produced by young craftsmen in the woodshop.

Art

Young artists are encouraged to expand their talents through the courses of the art department. Students may display their abilities in the drawing and painting, commercial art or advanced art courses. Individuals who enjoy working with their hands find the ceramic and sculpture classes fascinating, while others do creative work in mosaic and copper enameling. Those students who have a liking for design find satisfaction in the study of interior design or fashion design. The South High art department stresses a thorough knowledge of fundamentals as a basis for creative and original expression in all the art media. Many graduates utilize this training as a base for art careers in the business world.

The art displays in second floor main hall are admired and enjoyed by students with appreciative as well as critical eyes.

An art course popular among the girls is interior design. Color schemes and pleasing organization of home interiors are among those topics studied.

Through the vocal and instrumental music programs, young musicians are given an opportunity for expression of their talents. Students who have instrumental talent may participate in the Concert Band or Concert Orchestra. These musicians provide entertainment at various assemblies and for many groups throughout the metropolitan area. Also available are classes which explore the history and theory of music for increased appreciation and enjoyment.

Sonja Domas, a member of South's orchestra, practices with the group during sixth hour in preparation for one of its many public entertainments.

Sewing classes prove an invaluable help to girls who enjoy making their own clothes. Many girls find that making their wardrobes saves money and provides a worthwhile pastime.

Preparing well-balanced, attractive meals economically and developing sewing skills give the girls in the home economics classes the practical experience needed to become efficient homemakers.

In cooking classes special emphasis is placed on planning meals which are high in nutritive value. Aspiring seamstresses often design their own dresses and wear them with a sense of accomplishment.

Girls may plan for their future homes in a class created to teach its students how to select fine china, glassware, silverware and linens and how to decorate a home through the effective use of color, furniture, pictures and flowers.

The delicious aroma which greets students in the east end of the building is an enticing result of the culinary efforts of home economics students.

Kitchen Staff and Custodians

The kitchen staff and custodians are an indispensable part of South. Long hours are spent each morning to prepare the food devoured by hungry Southerners and faculty members. The work does not end with the preparation of the meals, for the kitchen must be cleaned and made ready for the next day.

South's clean halls and rooms are the result of the custodians' efforts. These people also perform a thousand and one little and seemingly insignificant tasks to keep all equipment in proper working condition.

Sophomores

Standing on the first step of high school, the sophomore prepares for three unequalled and unbelievable years. With an autumn sun warming his eager yet timid countenance, he crosses the campus and enters through the heavy doors for the first time. Once inside the echoing laughter of the auditorium, he is caught in the gay confusion. He sees a maze of faces blurred in the grey shadows, recognizing only a few and wondering with whom he will share his classes, his clubs and his activities.

Gradually the sophomores will prove themselves worthy to be a part of the Rebel family. To give themselves a place in the student government, they will hold class elections. New friends will be made when they gather for the first time as a group at their Sophomore Party. These newest members of South High will find their niche as they move from the shadows of unfamiliarity up one step into the light of belonging.

Sophomore Class

"I hate to put on lipstick . . . it tickles!"

'Tain't every boy who can take two winky dolls to a dance!

"Isn't he divine? I wonder if he cooks, too!"

Capers

"Hey, I'm here, too!"

"My mother was right . . . my feet are bigger than hers!"

When the leaves and trees were green . . .

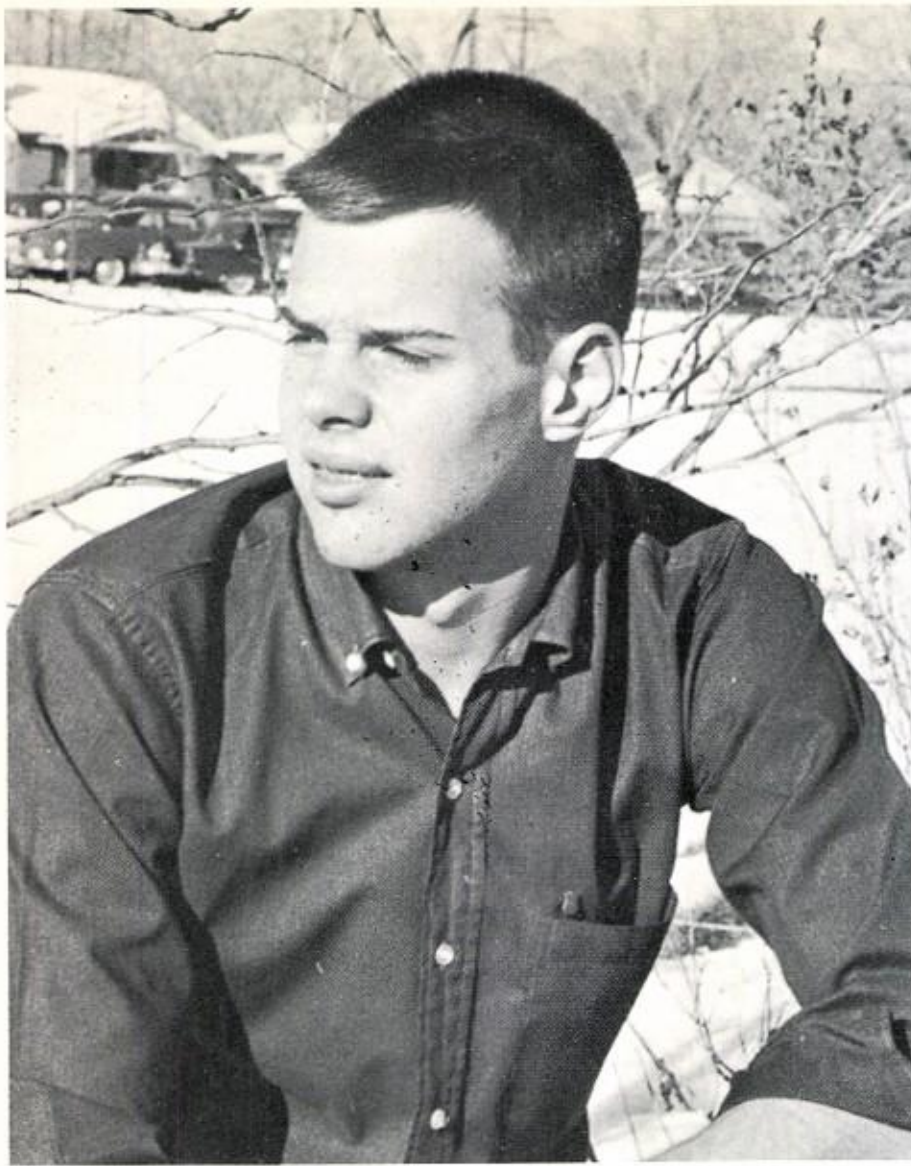

Juniors

With one year of getting acquainted behind them, the juniors return to South in the fall and take their position on the second step of school responsibility. Members of this class cross the lawn leisurely and rest in the shade of trees to chat with last year's acquaintances. In the familiar classrooms the sun dances across polished desk tops and highly varnished floors saying, "Welcome back," to these students beginning their second year at South.

The juniors, who form the majority of happy-go-lucky Southerners, will enjoy a year of fun with an ample amount of work for good measure. The highlight of their nine months will be the Junior Prom and the thrill of a first formal dance for many couples. Amidst their gaiety, they will not forget their primary aim in school as they move one step higher during their year of interplaying lights and shadows, of work and fun.

Bottoms up!

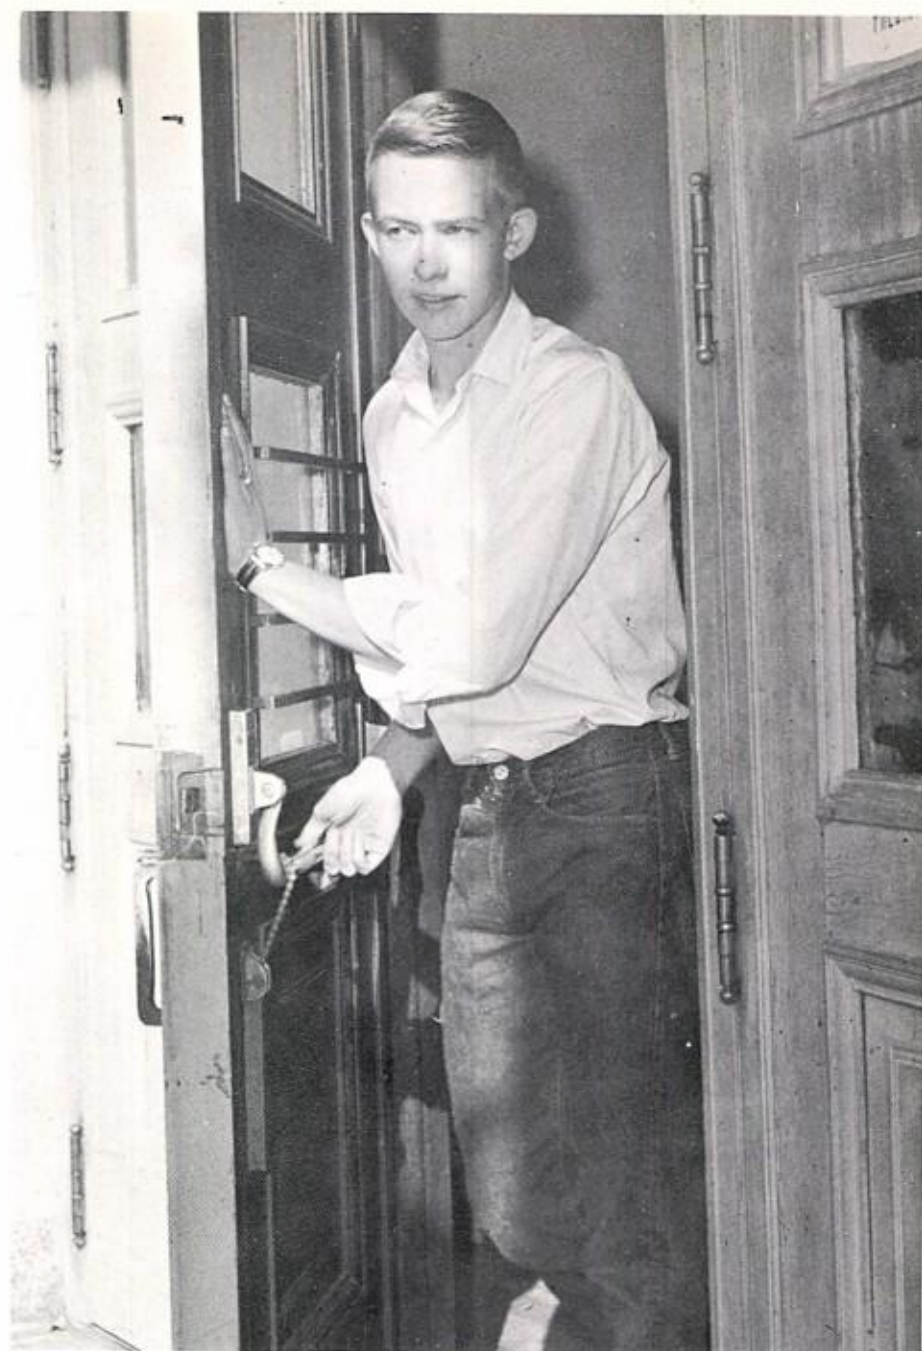

Juniors at Random

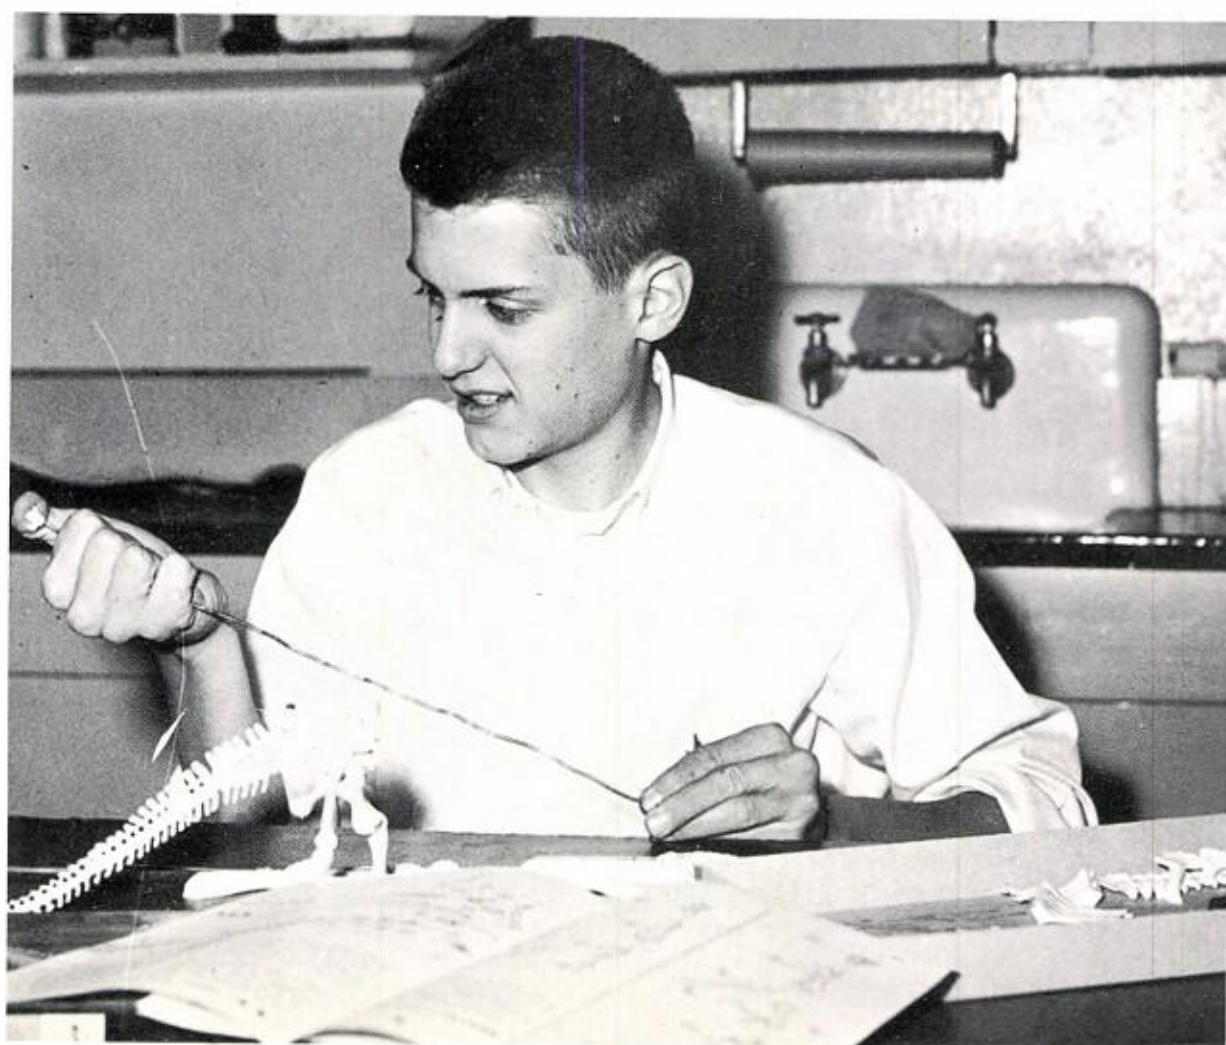

"With my best silk scarf!"

"Oh, he makes me so mad!"

"If that's the way she feels, I won't call her this week."

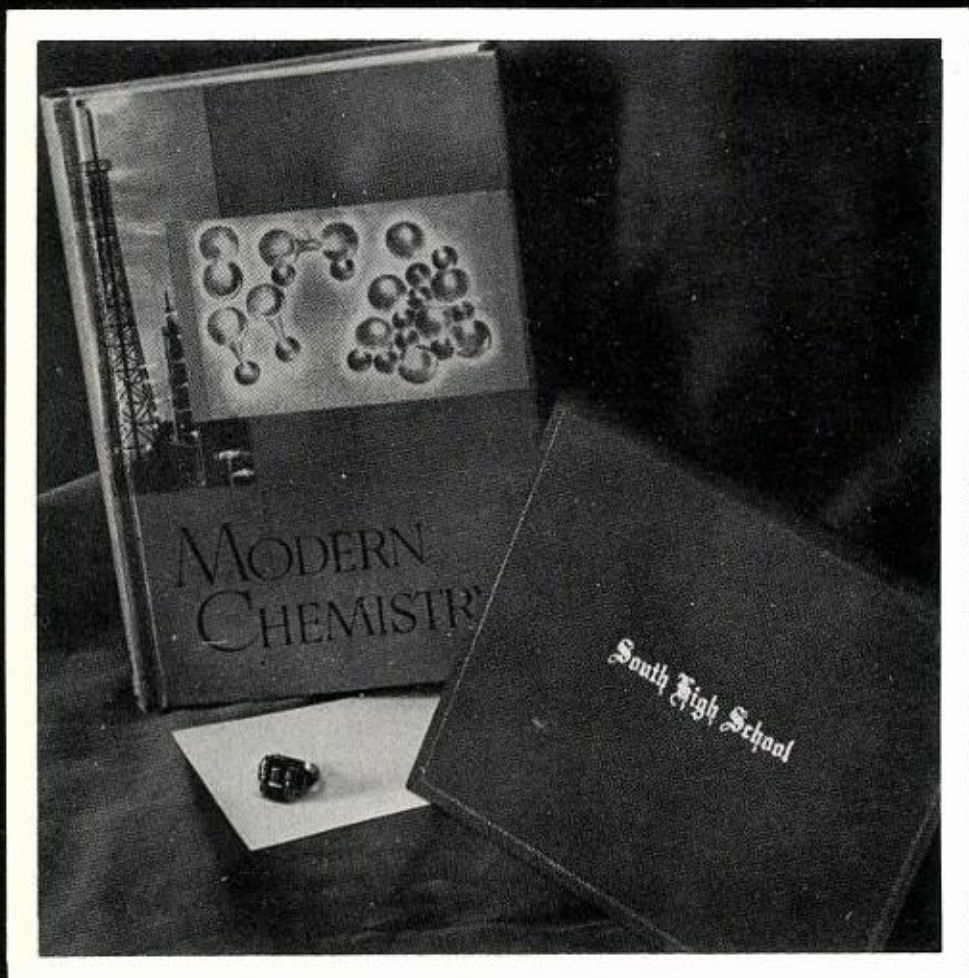

"Look what I got for Christmas!"

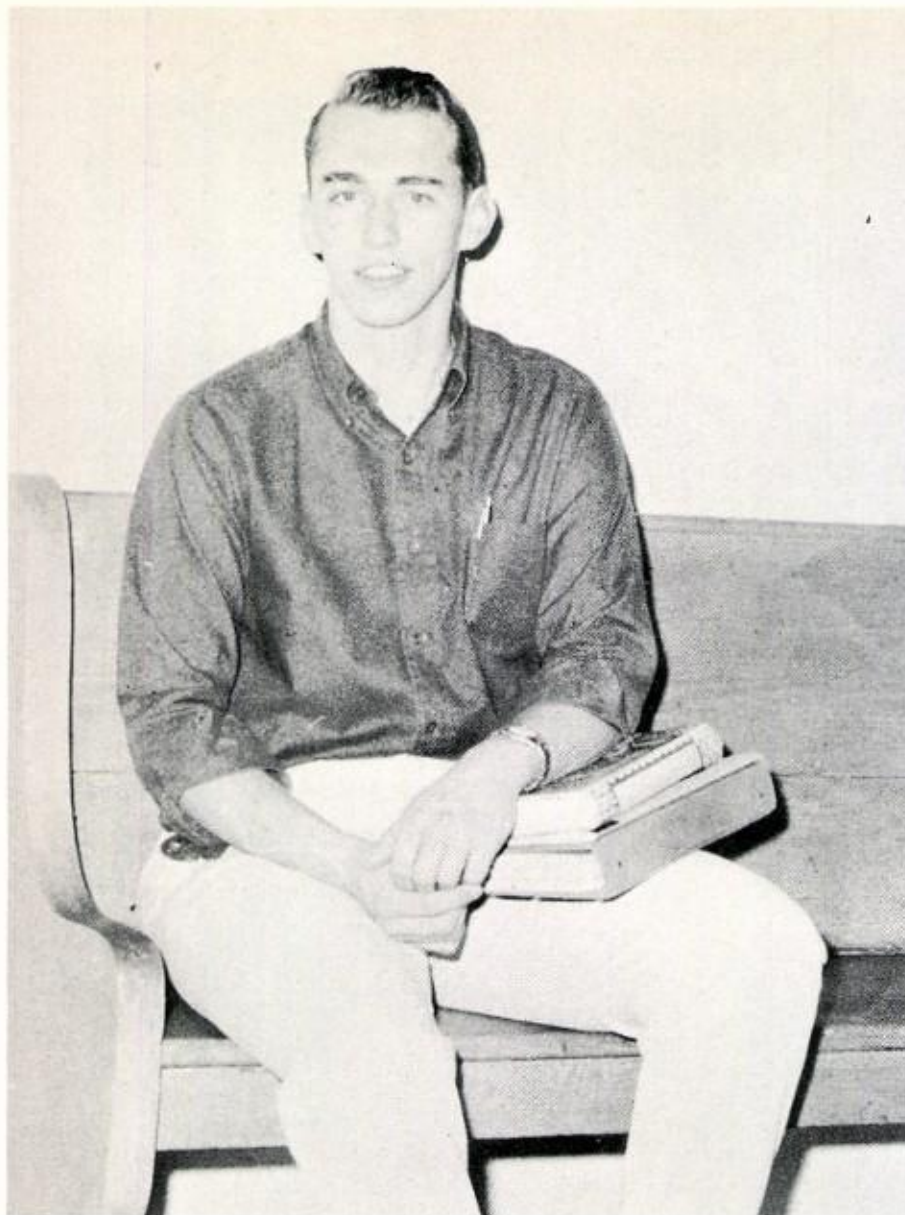

Seniors

Beginning their final year, the upperclassmen of South step into the highest spotlight of school leadership and example. As one senior privilege, these students can revel for the first time in the glory of sitting as rightful occupants in Senior Hall, while the autumn sun plays its continual game of lights and shadows on the tiles and benches. Here the friends who have shared the first two years together can glance back on what they have enjoyed and look forward to the busy senior whirl.

These Rebel seniors will work and play hard, making the most of every moment, doing the dozens of things they will not have the opportunity to do again. Their school spirit will soar to its peak in an effort to make their senior year an outstanding experience. Wondering what the future holds, they will bury themselves in college catalogues and occupational pamphlets. When commencement nears each student will take the final steps of graduation, leaving high school to fade into background shadows as he enters the engulfing light of the world.

Senior Class Council

The council maintained the tradition of Senior Hall where Seniors such as Denny Lee, Denny Wyatt, and Tom White could relax or study before first hour classes.

FRONT ROW: B. Nikkel, M. Weisbrod, G. McRae, L. Bisson, D. Wyatt, S. Tanberg. ROW TWO: B. Mosconi, S. Becker, C. Barnes, K. Bowman, C. Paine, S. Axelson, M. McFarland, S. Rechnitz. ROW THREE: P. Gruenwald, B. Lofgren.

Bill Nikkel

Outstanding Senior Boy

Bill Nikkel was selected on the basis of grade point average, school attendance and school citizenship for the honor of Outstanding Senior Boy. A group of four Kiwanians made the selection from the senior boys nominated by their classmates. Bill is indeed a worthy recipient of this honor, displaying his interest in school service as senior class president and exercising his musical talents in Concert Choir, All-City Choir and Concert, All-City and All-State Bands. Many students recognized him as the "man with the saxophone" in school assemblies, All-School shows and his own dance band. With all his activities, Bill was still able to maintain Triple S membership and to rank eighth in the senior class with a grade point average of 4.13.

Lorene Gerton

D.A.R. Award

Known to all by her winning smile and excellence as a pianist, Lorene Gerton was selected as Outstanding Senior Girl. This year the procedure for making the award was changed. Each senior girl holding an office in a service club or a position on Student Council was eligible, and from these 21, the senior girls made their decision for Lorene by balloting.

Lorene has been an active participant in school life. She was always eager to serve, and led the student body as Head Girl. Possessing a fine voice as well as unmatched talent on a piano, Lorene enjoyed singing in "B" Choir and Concert Choir. She held the post of a Captain in Honorary Cadets and maintained membership in Tri-Hi-Y, Triple S and I.C.C.

Selection of Rebel Rousers

Each year the Johnny Reb honors several outstanding seniors as Rebel Rousers. These seniors are chosen by the faculty on the basis of academic achievement, club work, excellence in sports, and active participation in school life. The nominations are made by the faculty, and from those nominations they select the 26 seniors whom they consider most worthy of the Rebel Rouser title.

There are many others who could be added, but these students on the following pages are the ones who have been among the outstanding members of the Class of 1961.

Senior Memories

Seven hundred and fifty proud seniors march into the arena of the University of Denver to receive their diplomas. Their heads are high, while proud parents and relatives search among the students for that one special person. Blazing over the inspiring contrast of deep purple and creamy-white robes, hundreds of clear white lights cast only dim shadows on the floor, for this is a night of expectation, and shadows have no place here.

With the dawn, the graduation will fade into the shadow of memory. The crumpled program of the preceding night will be put in a scrapbook next to a strip of crepe paper and a tattered pep card. With the dawn will also come the realization that only a small but very important part of life has surrendered itself to memory. Standing on the firm foundation he has built from his books, his research and his creativity, the graduate will leave his shadows of high school and look into the light of a world waiting expectantly for a new generation.

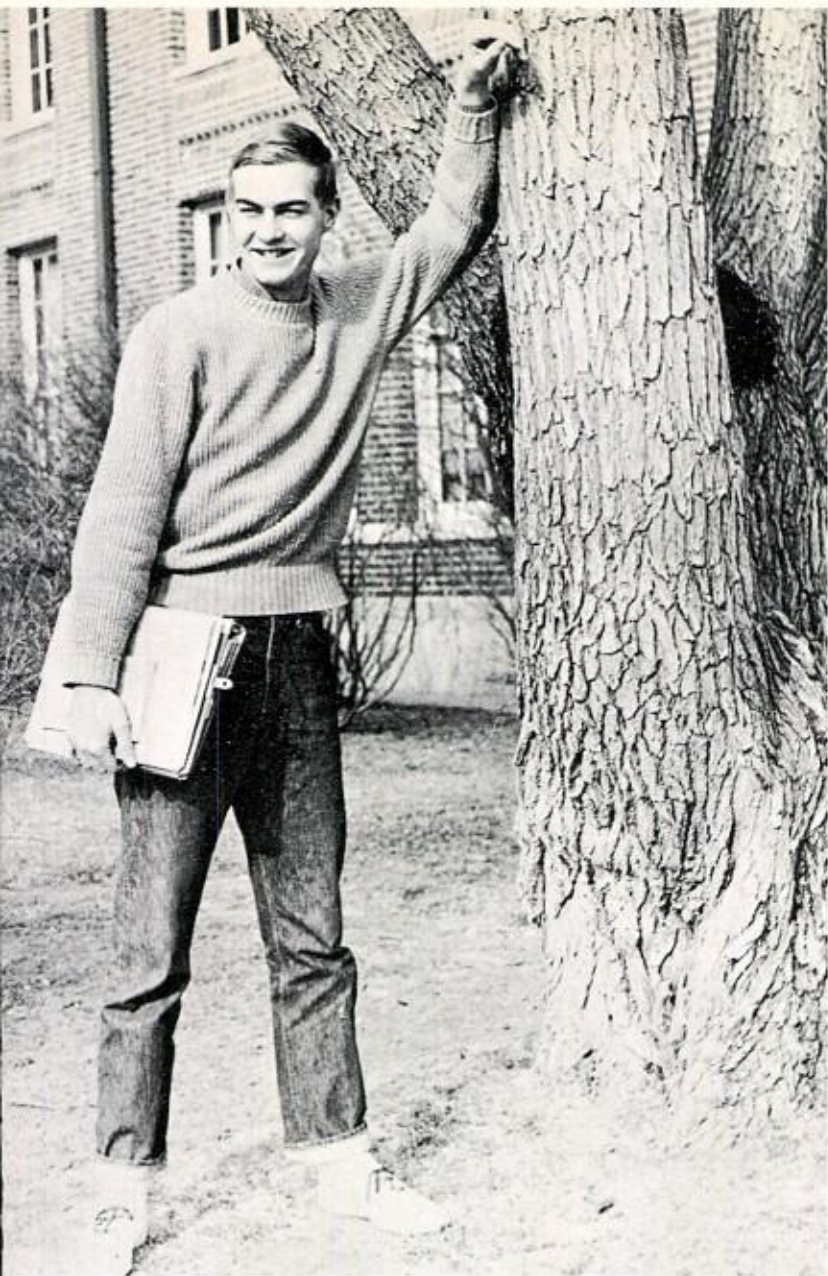

Our thoughtful and considerate sophomore and junior sponsors, Mr. Wright and Miss Garrett, encouraged the Class of '61 onward to higher achievements.

We Came to South

We came to South as new, unknowing, but enthusiastic Southerners. Energetically we elected officers, selected a class council and made the Class of '61 known to our upper-classmen. Putting together our class party, participating in the All-School Show and electing our Color Day royalty were a few of our sophomore activities. Skillfully led by our duly elected officers and our wonderful sponsors, the Class of '61 forged ahead, gaining a foothold in our new environment—South High School.

Our sophomore class elected pretty Mary Jo Dedrick, Sue Juhnke, and Sharon Woods to represent us on Color Day.

Harry Kisker as Sophomore Class President joined hands with June Gray and Paula Chance, now attending T. J., to lead our class.

Several members of our class enthusiastically hung decorations for a sophomore year party.

The radiant royalty at our Junior Prom, "Emerald Illusion," included Misses Mary Emanuel, Robin Lawson, and Gwen Gamel.

Members of the junior class were now able to participate in the "behind the scenes" of such successes as the Pep Club Dance.

We Worked and Played

Chastened by a year of experience, we came back to South looking forward to our junior year. Soberly we plunged into the business of the year. We produced our memorable Junior Prom, "Emerald Illusion," and lent our best talent to "Have Fun-Will Travel." We emerged experienced and ready to accept the challenge of being seniors.

We will all remember Mr. Joseph Lort, our number one Rebel Rouser, who served as principal in our sophomore and junior years.

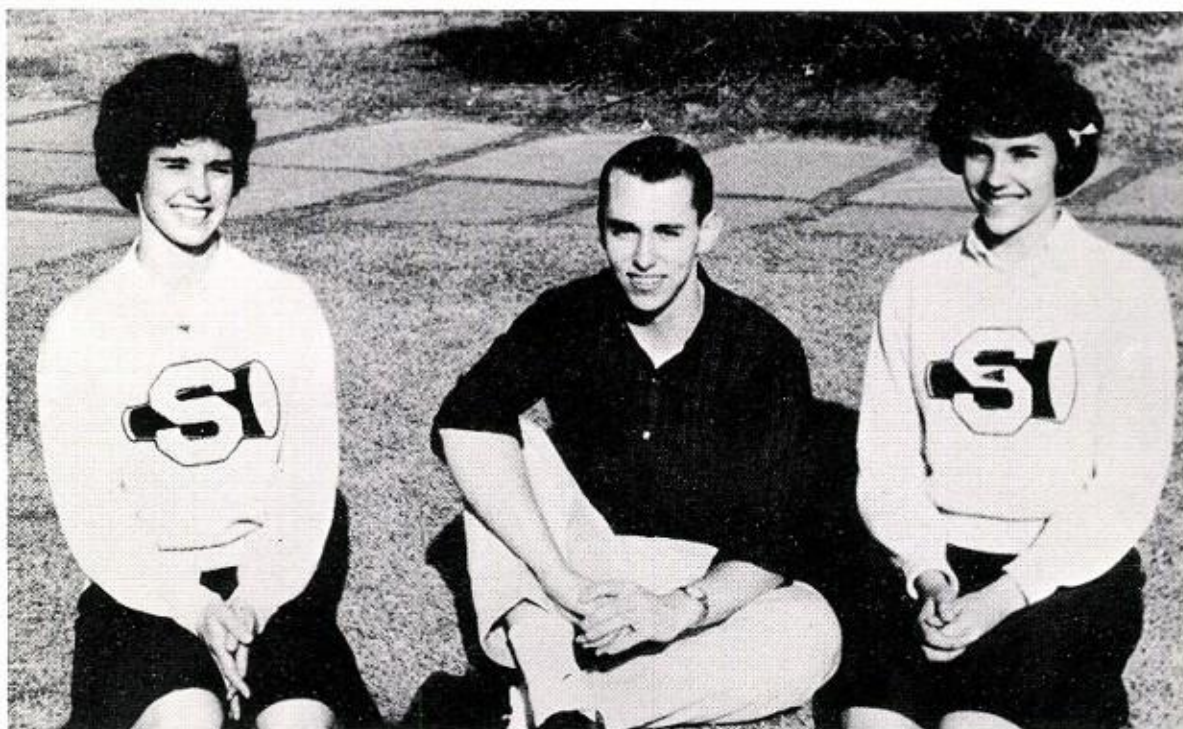

Our junior Color Day royalty included Susie Williams, junior queen, and her two attendants, Diane Anderson and Mary Anne Hubbell.

Mr. Clark and Miss McGehee replaced Mr. Wright and Miss Garrett as our class sponsors when the latter were transferred to different schools. Our new sponsors helpfully and willingly guided the Class of '61 through their Senior year.

We Learned Responsibility

As seniors we carried with us the knowledge that in just one year we had to be prepared to go on to advanced education or to seek immediate employment. We were determined to make this last year the best one. Some of our anticipations were realized in our Senior Prom, "Reflections," and highly polished performances made "An Enchanting Evening with Oscar Hammerstein" one of the most memorable nights at South. The events pictured on these pages show just a small part of the many enjoyable and laudable experiences the Class of '61 had during its three years at South.

Michelle Weisbrod, Bill Nikkel and Gayla McRae, senior class officers, proved their leadership abilities by capably leading us through our last year at South.

We can be justly proud of our four Student Body officers who, as student leaders, helped to set high standards at South High. They were Patty Stubbs, Lorene Gerton, Lynn Brokaw, and Betty Conard.

Doug Anderson and Bill Nikkel enjoy reminiscing about the experiences they shared with Paul Brase (not shown) as Southern Representatives to Boys' State.

Able representatives to Girls' State Jo Heller, Caroline Geyer, and Dana Bennett spent an enjoyable week at the conference representing South in assemblies, discussions, and social activities.

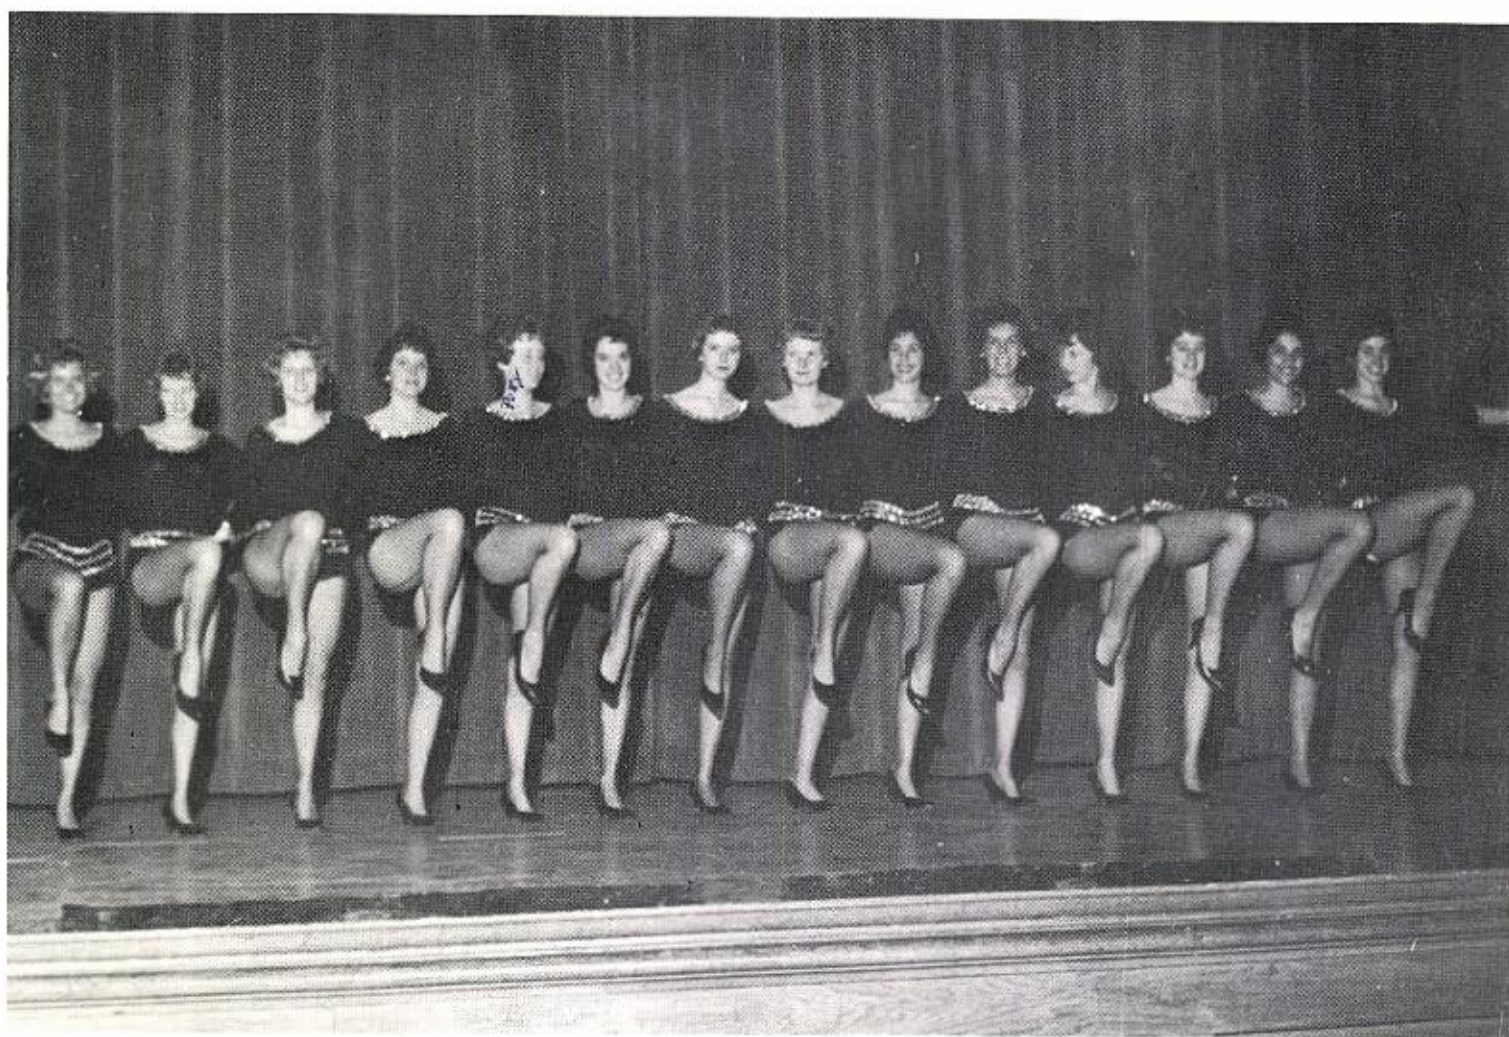

Honorary Cadets are outstanding girls who are chosen in our sophomore year to serve the executive staff of R.O.T.C. The girls who have served for the past two years are Ginger Larson, Mary Jo Dedrick, Melanie McFarland, Rosemary Wherry, Barbara Loigren, Lorene Gerton and Jean Pferdesteller.

South was fortunate to be able to participate in the American Field Service exchange program by having Eric Rod from Norway for the entire school year, and by sending Heidi Markisen to Germany during the fall semester. Rick Chapman, not pictured above, spent his summer months in Italy under the A.F.S. program.

Steve Tanberg and Sue Clark worked tirelessly to make our Senior Prom a successful "Reflection" of three memorable years.

A highlight of the All-School Show which made "An Enchanted Evening with Oscar Hammerstein" even more enchanting was a senior girls' dance line.

The girls vivacious and pretty, the boys energetic and enthusiastic, South High's cheerleaders promoted school spirit at rallies and assemblies throughout the year. Forming the pyramid are John Imes, Mickey Weisbrod, Ray Riley, Gayla McRae, Judy Gruenwald and, on top, Nancy Blue. Harry Kisker is not shown.

Rallies such as this turn-about one remind us of the antics of our spunky cheerleaders. Here Gayla, Mickey, Nancy and Harry appear as Harry, John, Ray, and Mickey.

A new face which was to become a "Southern Custom" during our Senior year was that of Dr. Anderson. An avid sports fan and amateur photographer, he was always around to greet us.

In Memoriam

Mrs. Enid Craig

A street lamp gleams before being consumed by the blaze of morning sun, as life flickers for a few brief moments, ultimately blending into the mysterious light beyond death.

Dave,

I really don't know where to start - Without you this last year, I could never have made it through French. I can't express my thanks.

Dave, you don't know how much admiration I have for you. You are about the nicest boy I know. You have a good personality, and you're so down to earth. So many boys are always "playing the cool" and it makes me sick! You're always yourself which is the best way to be. You have such high ideals, which I really respect you for!

Remember, if you have any problems ~~any~~ at all, you can always talk to me, though in the past I have probably confused you more than helped you.

Best luck although you don't need it. I wish you the most happy and prosperous life attainable.

We've really had some fun times in the past, and I hope there are more to come.

Dave, again, I can't express my appreciation for your help. Please, if I can ever do anything to help you, feel free to call me -

We've been friends for an awful long time - Remember the 7-6's and our championship volleyball team? All the parties we used to have? We really did have fun! I hope our friendship continues into college -

Sincerely,

Carol
